

ARCHBALD GUILTY IS VERDICT OF SENATE IMPEACHMENT COURT

JUDGE OF COMMERCE COURT CONVICTED ON FIRST AND MOST IMPORTANT OF TWELVE CHARGES.

REMOVAL IS CERTAIN

Found "Not Guilty" on Second Count and "Guilty" on Third, But Result is Now Sufficient for His Dismissal.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 12.—A verdict of "guilty" was voted by the senate on the first impeachment charge against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court that he had wrongfully influenced Erie railroad officials to grant him an option on the Kalamazoo-Calum dump. Conviction on the other twelve charges is unnecessary to remove the judge from the bench. The vote on the first count was sixty-eight against Judge Archbald and five in his favor. The senate then proceeded to vote on the other twelve articles of the impeachment.

"Not Guilty" on Second.
"Not guilty" was the verdict on the second article of impeachment which charged Judge Archbald with having attempted to secure a fee by settling a case between the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad. The vote was 46 to 25 in the judge's favor.

On Third Charge.
On the third charge the senate found Judge Archbald guilty. This charge embodied alleged undue influence on Lehigh Valley railroad officials in a coal dump deal.

Before the first article of impeachment was read, Senators Kern Dillingham and Bradley asked to be excused from voting because they had not been present through the trial.

They were excused, and other senators were excused from voting on all articles, and certain articles.
The vote on the balloting for conviction in the first count, Senators La Follette and Stephenson of Wisconsin voted, among others, for conviction.
The first charge on which Archbald was convicted he was charged with high crimes and misdemeanors.

The vote on the third article was 60 to 11.

The vote on the fourth article of impeachment again resulted in conviction, 52 to 20.

Judge Archbald was acquitted on the sixth charge, the voting for conviction being 24 to 45.

A verdict of not guilty was voted on the seventh article, the ballot, 29 to 36 failing of the necessary two-thirds.

Archbald was held not guilty on the charge in the eighth article of impeachment. The vote for conviction, 22 to 42, failed of the necessary two-thirds.

A verdict of not guilty was voted on the ninth article, charging Judge Archbald with influencing C. H. Van Storch to discount his note. The vote for conviction was 23 to 39.

Voting began at once on the tenth charge.
On the tenth article of impeachment, Judge Archbald was again held not guilty, the vote for conviction being 1 to 57. This accused him of accepting a trip to Europe from Henry W. Cannon, a railroad director.

ARCHBALD LETTERS SECURED BY HEARST

Negro Law Clerk Tells How New York American And Chicago Examiner Got Standard Oil Papers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 12.—A story of how copies of letters from John D. Archbald to former Senator Foraker and other public men were taken from the Standard Oil Company's office at 26 Broadway, New York, by W. W. Winkfield and Charles Stump, negro messengers employed by the company, was told to the senate campaign fund investigating committee today by Gilchrist Stewart, a negro law clerk.

Stewart said that he was employed by Mr. Foraker to investigate whether certain alleged photographic copies of letters published were forgeries. Winkfield was found in Chicago, Stewart said, and told him a story of how he and Stump took letters from the Standard Oil files and disposed of them to a representative of the New York American.

While in Chicago December 21, Stewart declared he was kidnapped by "gangsters" taken to the office of the Chicago Examiner and robbed of a number of letters and papers including two letters to him from former Senator Foraker.

PASSENGERS SAVED WHILE STEAMER IS WRECKED ON REEFS

Uranium Stranded on Rocks Below Halifax Will Probably Be Pounded to Pieces.—880 Passengers Safely Landed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Halifax, N. S., Jan. 12.—The steamer Uranium, which terminated her voyage from Rotterdam by piling up on a rocky reef ten miles below Halifax in a fog yesterday, remained fast today, with Captain Eustace and crew aboard, but with all the 880 passengers safe ashore at the immigration station here. Whether the vessel could be saved was problematical. Working steamers planned to pull on her at high tide.

On Dangerous Course.
The steamer is stuck low on with seventeen fathoms of water under stern. The bow plates were ripped open and No. 1 lifeboat was filled. The vessel's position is only a few hundred yards from the light-house at Chebucto Head where the keeper declares he is blowing his fog horn when the vessel struck. It was on the same ledge and not far from this spot that the steamer Atlantic of the White Star line was lost in April 1873, with a sacrifice of 600 lives.

The rescue of the Uranium's passengers was accomplished by lifeboats from Chebucto Head and by transfer to the government steamer Lady Laurier, which was prompt to reply to wireless signals. There was no panic, notwithstanding that among the passengers there were many women and children. There were many thrills, but no serious accidents and all of the passengers were landed here during the night. Six hundred of them bound for New York will probably leave today by special train.

In Service 22 Years.
The Uranium is a 22 year old boat which has sailed about all the seven seas under four different owners and under as many different names. She was christened the Avoca, later named the San Fernando, and then the Atlanta. The Uranium Steamship Company, her present owners gave her the company's name. Her only serious accident of record is a collision with the steamship Norddeutscher Lloyd four years ago, when she was badly damaged and one of her crew killed.

There is no explanation of the present stranding of the ship. She was considerably off of her course. Captain Eustace says he did not hear the fog alarm although where he struck is not a quarter of a mile distant from it.

ACCUSED OF KILLING HIS LOVER'S MOTHER

Trial of Norman Bruce McCleary, Charged With Murder of Mrs. M. B. Henry Begins Soon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Rockville, Md., Jan. 12.—The term of circuit court which convened here today promises to be made notable by the trial of Norman Bruce McCleary, who is under indictment for the murder of Mrs. Mannie B. Henry, mother of his former sweetheart, Miss Lupah Henry. The case has been brought here on change of venue from Hagerstown.

Mrs. Henry was found dead, lying across a bed in her home at Hagerstown August 19 last. She had been dead evidently several days. Her daughter, Miss Lupah Henry, who was employed by the city as a stenographer, had left Hagerstown August 15 in order, it is said, to escape the alleged unwelcome attentions of McCleary.

A week later Hagerstown was startled by the intelligence that young McCleary had been arrested in Washington, suspected as the murderer of Mrs. Henry, and of having intentions to kill her daughter. Following his arrest, McCleary is said to have admitted to the authorities that he had choked Mrs. Henry to death.

SIXTY-TWO MILLIONS FOR 'PHONE SYSTEM

Is Price British Government Will Pay National Telephone Company for Taking Over Lines.

London, Jan. 12.—The British government is to pay to the National Telephone Company of the United Kingdom the sum of $62,576,320 for its property, according to a decision reached by the railway and canal commission sitting as a court of arbitration. The whole of the telephone system in the British Isles passed into the hands of the state on January 1, 1912. The National Telephone Company originally asked $105,000,000 for its interest but during the seventy-three day trial just ended this claim was reduced by many millions.

It had been expected by the stock exchange experts, however, that the company would receive from eighty to ninety million dollars. The stock of the company immediately upon the award fell from 141 to 109.

The arbitration has been one of the most important in the history of the country. During the trial the parties came to an agreement as to the cost of the plant, the sum being $5,568,625. The court then had to decide the percentage which should be properly added to that sum and also the depreciation.

INSTALL GOVERNORS IN SEVERAL STATES

RALSTON BECOMES EXECUTIVE IN INDIANA SUCCEEDING MARSHALL.

OREGON SOLONS MEET

Democratic Governor Inaugurated in Kansas—New Governor of Missouri Sworn.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 12.—Samuel M. Ralston today was ushered into the governorship of Indiana, succeeding Thomas H. Marshall, who is soon to take office as vice president of the United States. The inauguration ceremonies were of an unusually elaborate nature. The citizens committee of Indianapolis, in charge of the affair, had labored for weeks to perfect the smallest detail of the arrangements.

A military escort accompanied the setting governor and his successor to the State House. Waiting for the gubernatorial party in the main corridor of the Capitol, where the ceremonies took place, were the members of the legislature, the state officers and general public.

The ceremonies of the inauguration proper were the simplest of the day. Governor Marshall presided and delivered the opening address. The Rev. O. C. Carmichael of Lebanon, Governor-elect Ralston's pastor, pronounced the invocation and Judge E. W. Fell of Greencastle, who was a college classmate of the new governor, administered the oath of office. Governor Ralston followed with a short inaugural address and the ceremony was over.

Oregon Legislature Opens.

Salem, Ore., Jan. 12.—For the second time within a few years an Oregon legislature is about to elect a United States senator whose political faith is the opposite of that of the majority of its members. Notwithstanding that the legislature which convened today is overwhelmingly Republican it will elect as United States senator, Dr. Harry Lane, a Democrat, the college of the executive of Oregon, also a Democrat, who was elected under similar circumstances four years ago. The election of Dr. Lane will be in compliance with the much-discussed Oregon law which pledges the legislators to vote for the candidate for senator who receives the highest popular vote at the November election.

When the senatorial election is disposed of the lawmakers will turn their attention to one of the most important legislative programs that has been prepared in years. Many of the measures prepared for consideration are of an extremely progressive character. Included in the list are bills for workmen's compensation, mothers' pensions, a bachelor income tax, the curbing of "wildcat" speculation, a minimum wage law, and radical reforms in court procedure.

Inauguration in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Jan. 12.—The inauguration of former Congressman James M. Cox as governor of the State of Ohio today was attended by the paucity and pomp which are usually made a part of the ceremonies on the occasion of the administration of the oath of office to the chief executive of the Commonwealth. Many visitors from all parts of the state were in attendance.

Washington Legislature Meets.
Olympia, Wash., Jan. 12.—With two women included in its membership, the Washington legislature convened in the biennial session here today. Many important social reforms are proposed in the measures that have been prepared for consideration and action. No United States senators are to be elected at this session.

Iowa Legislature Convenes.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 13.—A heavy program confronts the thirty-fifth general assembly of Iowa, which convened today for its biennial session. Chief interest centers in five important measures that will be presented for consideration. They are: Workmen's compensation, good roads, revision of school laws, public utilities and a permanent tax commission. Other matters that are expected to be brought up during the session are woman's suffrage, the Oregon plan of electing United States senators, state prison reform, rural school problems, and provision for a stricter regulation of private banking institutions. Before the lawmakers begins the legislature will re-elect William S. Kenyon to the United States senate.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC FIGHTS TO SECURE OIL TRACT RIGHTS

Controversy Over Territory Worth Half Billion Comes up in United States Supreme Court.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 12.—An empire of oil lands worth probably more than half a billion dollars was the prize which brought groups of opposing lawyers today before the supreme court. The occasion was the argument of what reply the court should make to a request for instructions from the United States circuit court of appeals for the ninth circuit which was unable to decide whether the Southern Pacific railroad company or Edmund Burke and other separate entry men were entitled to valuable tracts of land now said to be gushing forth oil in California.

The railroad company has received patents to the land. The government recently brought proceedings to have the patents cancelled, but that question is not before the court. Patents contained a provision excepting all mineral lands from the grant. It is this provision which now furnishes the principle contention.

Burke and those in a similar position claim that the exception prevented that they are entitled to the land under the patent entry. The railroad contends that the exception could not now be produced to show the lands are "mineral" or oil lands, the government having issued a patent for them and no fraud having been practised upon it.

Primarily the Southern Pacific railroad alone is concerned in the present controversy, but the same exceptions are contained in patents to practically every land grant to railroad traversing the west and so all will be affected by the decision.

General Agent of Northwestern Mutual Company Believed to be Slated For Insurance Commissioner.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 12.—Because he held a long conference with the governor this morning, Edward M. McMahon, formerly general agent for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company now at Detroit, Michigan, looms up as a possibility for commissioner of insurance in place of Herman L. Ekern. McMahon said privately that he was here to visit old friends and would not discuss the possibility of an appointment.

Judge Landis, Incensed at Report of Compromise, Gives Supplemental Instructions to Jury.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Jan. 12.—Incensed at the report of an impending compromise of the charge affecting several of the largest Chicago manufacturers of oleomargarine which have been before the federal grand jury for several weeks, Federal Judge Landis today gave supplemental instructions to the grand jury directing that the investigation be resumed at once, regardless of what action is taken in Washington.

FRENCH EDITOR SEEKS TO AID BELGIUM JOURNALIST

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Jan. 12.—Edward Mylius, the Belgium journalist held at Ellis Island, pending appeal from an order of deportation because of his alleged libel of King George, the Fifth of England, went over his case today with Edward Holton James, editor of the Paris Liberator, who has come across the sea to help him in his fight for entrance into America. No date has been set for hearing the appeal.

TURKEY TO RECEIVE FINAL PEACE TERMS IN A FORMAL NOTE

Success of Peace Conference Now Rests With Government at Constantinople—Draft Letter Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Jan. 12.—The issue of peace or war will rest with Constantinople after the final drafting of the note to the Ottoman government which will be settled at today's meeting of the ambassadors at the British foreign office. The ambassadors will today decide also the mode and time of presentation of the document to the porte.

The conclusion of the Turkish grand council is considered a sign in favor of peace. If Turkey were ready for war the calling together of the council would be unnecessary. Like that of 1878 at the time of the Russo-Turkish war the present grand council appears destined to share with the Turkish cabinet the responsibility of making peace on this occasion by yielding the fortress of Adrianople.

This, however, is not the view held by the Ottoman peace delegates here who persist in the opinion that nothing can possibly induce the court to renounce the historic Mohammedan capital. The envoys of the Balkan allies express the opinion that the note drafted by the European powers would acquire greater weight if presented to the Ottoman government collectively by all the European ambassadors in Constantinople. They think that if it should be presented by the Austro-Hungarian ambassador in his capacity as dean of the diplomatic corps it might lose importance owing to the Austrian bitterness against some of the Balkan states. The negotiations of the interior of Roumania and Dr. S. Daneu leader of the Bulgarian peace delegation. It seems that Bulgaria questions strongly Roumania's neutrality and it is declared she is able to prove that Bucharest allowed 800 trucks of war material from Germany to pass through Roumania territory on the way to Turkey.

The Turkish newspaper Tasfir-i Efkâr, says that the Ottoman cabinet has decided to resign according to a dispatch today from Constantinople. This is believed to indicate the predominance of the influence of the war party.

The European powers will present their peace note to the Turkish government immediately after the final draft was agreed to unanimously at today's meeting of the ambassadors.

SAVE THREE WEEKS IN READING BILLS

Proposed to Have Bills Read Only When They Come up For Passage.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 12.—Three weeks of reading may be saved Chief Clerk C. E. Shaffer of the assembly. The members of the legislature are discussing the proposal to have the bills introduced, read only when they come up for final passage. At the present time the title of the bill is read twice before it is referred to a committee. The assembly suggested that some members would be to have all bills sent to the clerk's desk and a printed slip furnished each member the following morning so that he may know to what committee his bill has been sent. He may then get it referred to another committee, if he desires. It is claimed that fully three weeks of the time of the legislature is consumed in listening to the perfunctory reading of these bills. If the plan should be adopted it would save the chief clerk of the assembly from one to two hours reading every morning of the session. The time of the legislature could be devoted otherwise.

THOUSANDS DRIVEN OUT BY THE FLOOD

Three Thousand People Estimated to Have Been Driven Out by Ohio River Floods.—Heavy Property Damage.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cincinnati, Jan. 12.—It was estimated today that 3,000 persons had been driven by the Ohio river flood, from their homes in Cincinnati and the cities of Covington, Newport and Dayton across the river in Kentucky. Many factories have been flooded and hundreds of persons thrown out of work. The Ohio river continued to rise steadily, but more slowly today. The stage at nine o'clock being 61.2 feet. The government forecaster predicted that the rise would continue today and tomorrow and that probably a maximum stage of 63 feet would be reached.

In Kentucky cities, churches, school houses are police stations are sheltering the homeless.

Bottom Lands Flooded.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Evansville, Ind., Jan. 12.—Dispatches say that hundreds of square miles in the bottom lands between Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Cave-in-Rock, Ill., are inundated three to four feet deep and property loss will run into a high figure because of the inability of lowlanders to get their live stock out in time. Tugs and steam boats here have been lending assistance to the flood-stricken dwellers in the homes and in some cases suffering.

Rise Less Rapid.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 12.—Police and fire department employees working to move families from districts menaced by the Ohio river flood, were cheered this morning by news that the rise was less rapid than registered last night.

JAMES SAYS LUMBER GOES ON FREE LIST

KENTUCKIAN MAKES STATEMENT DURING HEARING BEFORE TARIFF COMMITTEE TODAY.

IS PLEDGE TO PEOPLE

Which It Is Party's Duty to Fulfill Is His Rejoinder to Objection Raised by Southern Lumber Dealer.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 12.—"We have promised the people to put lumber on the free list," said Representative James of Kentucky, during the testimony of George W. Jones of Norfolk, Va., "and if we fail to put it on the free list it seems to me we will be breaking the pledge." Mr. Jones representing the North Carolina Pine Association and speaking for saw mill producers in Virginia and the Carolinas, said that if it were necessary for the democratic party in carrying out its purpose of revision to make the lumber manufacturers the victims of a "vicarious sacrifice," he would acquiesce, but he believed that lumber was in a class by itself on a revenue instead of protective basis.

The Lumber and Silk Schedule of the tariff were the issue in testimony today before the house ways and means committee. There was no democratic bill for these schedules at the last session as in the case of chemicals and iron and steel to afford a tentative plan for the committee.

Schedule "D" of the present law covers timber, sawed boards, posts, clap boards, laths, pickets, casks, boxes, bbls, cabinet furniture, etc., at ad valorem duties ranging from 10 percent on posts, 30 percent on boxes, barrels, casks and hogheads to 45 percent on willow furniture and a variety of rates on various classes of lumber.

Schedule "L" covers silk, velvet, cheneille, handkerchiefs, ribbons, jaces, yarns and threads. Silk, no further advanced than carded or combed, is assessed 35 cents a pound, spun silk or silk yarn at a sliding scale with a minimum of 35 percent ad valorem and silk manufactures 50 percent. The Silk Association of America was among the organizations represented today.

With the passing of these two schedules the committee will have disposed of five of the fourteen schedules of the tariff law so far as the hearings are concerned. The program is to take up tomorrow the left over witnesses on the metal schedule.

An amendment to the postoffice appropriation to annul the executive orders which placed fourth class postmaster and assistant postmaster and clerks of first and second class offices under civil service was adopted by the house today, sitting as a committee of the whole. It was offered by Representative Cullip of Indiana, and will have to come before the house again when it finally passes on the bill.

Renewal of the fight in the house for an increase in the number of battleships to be built for the navy during the fiscal year for which appropriations will soon be made, has started a campaign by the two-battleship program advocates looking to a compromise on a single battleship. In the meanwhile the navy is pressing for provision for three big fighting ships. Secretary Meyer urged this program today before the house naval affairs committee.

Senator Nelson's bill to require United States courts to take all evidence in anti-trust cases in public passed the senate today.

AUTO BANDITS ROB SUBURBAN GROCERY

Smash Plate Glass Windows in Cheltenham, Near Chicago—Supposed to Be Escaped Convicts.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

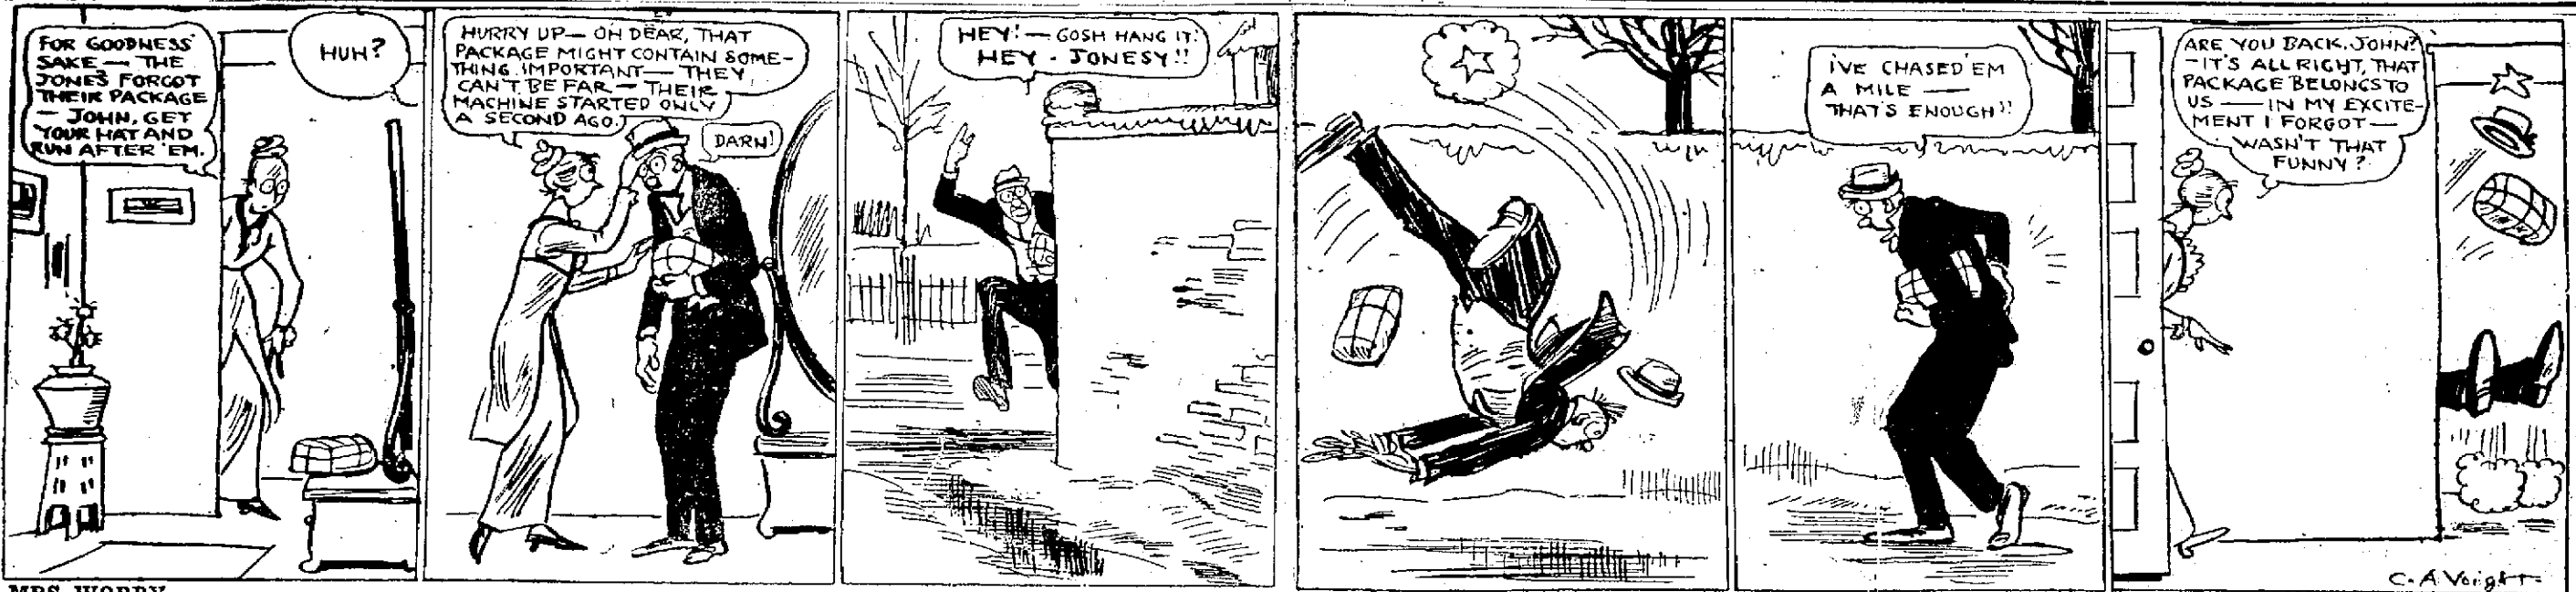

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Three auto bandits who invaded Cheltenham, a suburb of this city early today and robbed two grocery stores after smashing the plate glass windows may be the trio of convicts who escaped from Joliet penitentiary Saturday in a motor car, according to a theory on which the police are working. The convicts are reported to have abandoned their first motor car, but are believed to have commandeered a second one. A robber in evening clothes, this morning leisurely forced the door of an apartment house in one of the most fashionable districts on the north side and entering the bachelor apartments of Frederick L. Reynolds, president of an advertising company took away with him diamonds and jewelry valued at $1,000.

The January grand jury was instructed to take drastic measures to check the crime wave in Chicago when it was sworn in today by Judge Richard E. Burke.

Any woman made timid about appearing out of doors after dark owing to the crime wave of the last month may have the police escort by merely calling up the nearest police station. This notice was made public by Chief of Police McWeeney today.

MRS. WORRY.

BY C. A. VOIGHT.

Sport Shop Shots by Dan McCarty

Packey McFarland recently declared that he never wanted to fight in his home town of Chicago. The boxing game isn't allowed there, just now, but Packey has another reason. He says he's a hoodoo to boxing and wants to keep the curse away from his dear native city.

Packey fought at Davenport, Ia., on November 27, 1907. The governor called out the militia to stop the contest. Packey almost made mince-meat of Morrie Bloom, at Racine, Wis., a couple of years ago, and an awful storm of protest arose. About the same time Packey and Al Volgaest were matched for a bout in New York, but the affair had to be called off to save the state there, even the government of the state mixing in. McFarland boxed Eddie Murphy at South Bend, Ind., on February 14, 1911, and the lid has been down tight in South Bend ever since.

Mike Donlin, formerly of Pittsburgh, thinks this is a hard world. Last spring he took a liking to young Scops Carey and taught the youngster all the inner points about the game. Carey didn't know how to hold a bat or grab a ball, but Mike taught him these things and a lot beside. Now Carey lands Donlin's job and Mike is without a job.

If experience counts for anything the American league should have a decided shade on the National circuit when it comes to managing next season. In the American league every manager will have had at least some experience, while in the National three new pilots—Tinker, Evers and Huggins—will be new at the managerial game.

Roger Bresnahan, deposed manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, will spend his next three years with the Chicago Cubs. He probably will succeed Johnny Evers as manager of the Cubs if the latter falls down.

Frank Mantell, says that he must be considered whenever the question of middleweight champion comes up. Certainly he's one of the toughest propositions in the middleweight division. He is a skillful boxer, a crafty ring general, as well as a good two-handed hitter. He gave Billy Papke a bad beating in a twenty-round fight at Sacramento, Cal., since which time Billy knocked out Billy Leitch, beat Marcel Moreau in sixteen rounds in Paris, boxed Jack Denning a ten-round no-decision battle, went six rounds to a draw with Leo Houck, and then returned to Paris where he has won the title of European champion.

Jimmy Dime, who is managing Dan Daly, says that his protegee is making great progress. Out of fourteen battles in the last year or so Daly has won twelve, most of them by the knockout route. Dime says he proposes to keep Daly busy, and the fact that he has lost decision to a couple of clever fellows does not discourage him in the least.

COMUS CLUB MEETS A DECISIVE DEFEAT

Cardinals Win Return Game With Beloit Club, 28 to 8, After a Bitter Fight.

The Lakota Cardinals defeated their rivals, the Comus club team of Beloit, in a bitterly fought contest at the rink Saturday evening. The final score was 28 to 8. The game was played before a large and enthusiastic crowd and the Janesville boys got revenge for the defeat the Comus club gave them on the small Beloit Y. M. C. A. floor. The Beloit boys were at a disadvantage on the larger floor and were not able to cope with Janesville's speedy team-work and dribbling. The entire Janesville team played a good game and should have piled up a larger score but for hard luck at baskets.

Cunningham lead in field baskets with four, besides playing a clean, fast passing game. Spooner played a commendable game, throwing two field goals and his playing for the defense proved a stone wall to Beloit. Langdon played his usual brilliant game, carrying the ball from basket to basket by his dribbling. Wilkinson bagged three goals and held his man basketless. Brown and Booth played good guarding games and were important factors in keeping Beloit to such a low score.

For Beloit, the Gharilly brothers starred. Both of them proved fast guards and the locals found them able to hold their own in rough playing. Ed Gharilly, the left guard, is a Beloit college football player, and one of the best mile runners among the colleges. Berger, captain of the Beloit five, was a fast and accurate player, throwing two field goals. The Cardinals were well satisfied with the results of the game and are all confident of a successful season. The strong Armour Square team of Chicago, who defeated the Cardinals, 24 to 22, a short time ago, defeated the Chicago university team, 21 to 19, at the Bartlett gymnasium at Chicago. The Armour Square bunch are playing a fast game and the Janesville fans hope to see the Cardinals play and defeat them in the latter part of the season.

McCarty NOT YET CHAMPION: MUST FIRST PUT QUIETUS ON JESS WILLARD.

Luther McCarty may be the white heavyweight champ some day—he isn't yet. At least, thus opines one Texas cowboy, named Jess Willard.

Jess seems to have logic on his side, for it will be remembered that not so very long ago he bested McCarty in a ten-round battle in New York. McCarty has yet to wipe out the stain of that defeat before he can proclaim himself champion white heavyweight fighter of the world.

Willard is anxious to fight McCarty, too, and it is said that a battle may be arranged for the near future in New York city. That battle will decide, for the time at least, just what white man deserves the heavyweight crown.

Several of the white hopes who looked good until quite recently seem now down and out. One of them is Carl Morris, the Oklahoma giant. He may come back, but in the light of the past year's events it seems quite improbable.

Jim Flynn need no longer be considered. He has sustained some bitter defeats and he is now thirty-three. Everybody, including Flynn himself, regards the Pueblo freeman as a has-been so far as fighting is concerned.

Al Kaufman, too, has fallen into the pool of oblivion, and it will be some time at least before Palzer can hope to come back. Willard and McCarty, and possibly also Bombadier Wells, are the men who must decide between them who will be champ.

Certainly Willard looms big on the fight horizon. The fight he had with McCarty in New York showed that he can deliver the goods. He was given the verdict almost unanimously by the New York papers, and it was said in reports of the contest that McCarty was hardly able to land one telling blow on him.

Willard is the young fellow from the Texas plains uncovered by Charley Cutler, of Chicago, about a year ago. Cutler had him under his eye for a long time and then made the mistake of taking him to New York city and leaving him there. Naturally, somebody "stole" Jess away from Cutler, and now he is lost for good and all to the Chicago wrestler.

Puckey McFarland, the Chicago stockyards fighter, is soon to take Willard in hand and teach the Texan all he knows about the fight game. McFarland says Willard is the most dangerous white heavyweight now in the game.

ORTIE OVERALL MAY JOIN HIGHLANDERS

Ortie Overall.

Ortie Overall, one time Chicago Cub pitcher, has announced that he is anxious to get back into organized baseball, and his friends say he is likely to join the New York Highlanders.

"My baseball work in Los Angeles this winter shows me that my arm is as good as ever, and I want to get back," Overall is quoted as saying. "Murphy refused an offer of $2,000 made for me by Hon Logan, and he will try to keep me from playing to demand that the national commission force Murphy to accept terms for me, or permit me to play."

Care of Broken China.
When mending broken china always place it to set in a large box filled with sawdust. By this means it is easy to stand the article in any desired position, so that its own weight holds the pieces in place, while the cement is hardening.

Anxious Moments.
Speaking of anxious moments (although nobody was), there are those when you can't tell from what the toastmaster is saying whether he is introducing you or the other fellow.

DINNER STORIES

An American tourist was having his boots polished by an Irish boot-black, and as the latter was administering the finishing touches his patron rudely tossed two coppers on the pavement as a reward. This insult, added to, no doubt, by the fact that the reward was the mere recognized twopence, caused the bootblack to exclaim:

"Thank ye, sir. The only polish you have is on your boots, and I gave you that."

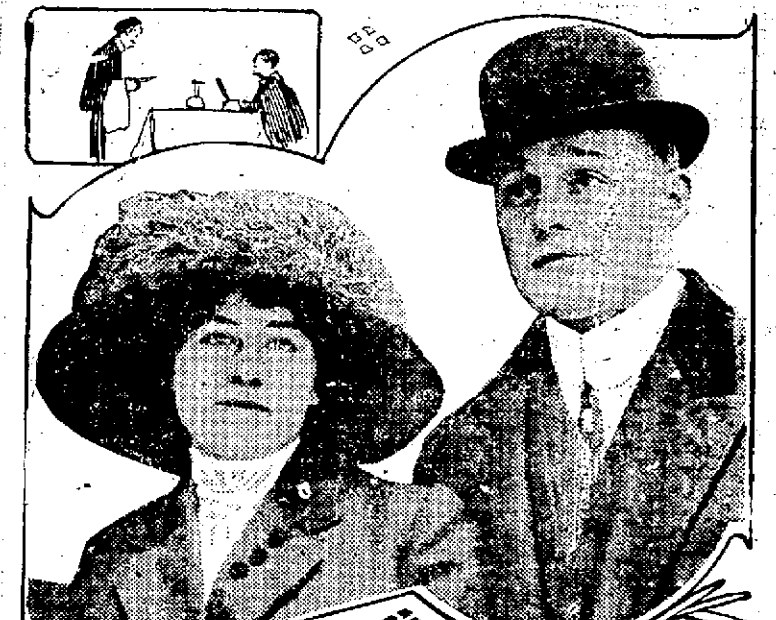

In his latest book, "A Wanderer in Florence," E. V. Lucas furnishes a new reading for that quotation about the leaves on the books of Vallombrosa, though he credits it to a cousin across the pond. Mr. Lucas visited Vallombrosa, and describing the extortionate rates of the hotels there tells the story: A departing American was eyeing his bill with a rueful glance as we were leaving.

"Milton had it wrong," he said to me (with the freemasonry of the plucked, for I knew him not). "What he meant was 'thick as thieves.'"

A friend in Scotland said to a boy: "What do you have for breakfast hereabouts?" "Porridge," was the answer. "And for dinner?" "Porridge." "And for supper?" "Porridge." "Goodness!" said the friend. "Porridge every day for every meal! Do you never have anything else?" "What else would you have?" said the boy.

The detective had just congratulated the housewife for bringing about the arrest of a noted sneak thief. "Oh, I knew he was a crook the minute he opened his mouth," she replied, smiling. "How did you tell the extortionate rates of the hotels there tells the story: A departing American was eyeing his bill with a rueful glance as we were leaving.

JUST BEING NICE AND HANDSOME WINS HEIRESS BRIDE FOR CINCINNATI WAITER

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Womeldorf.

Because he was just perfectly handsome and real nice besides, Clarence Womeldorf, a Cincinnati waiter, won the heart and hand of Miss Nora Boss, a $50,000 Cincinnati heiress. They eloped a few days ago. The bride's mother is very much excited over the elopement and has not yet forgiven her daughter. The bride, however, seems very well pleased with what she has done. "Waiters are exactly like other persons," she says. "They have souls like brokers, bankers, brewers, lawyers and reporters. Why should anybody care?"

UNJUST TAXATION.

The injustice of the extra assessment is now being experienced by the small tax-payers, who realize for the first time the extent of the fictitious valuation placed on their property by the commission sent out to get the "mon."

After the assessment was completed, the commission was in session for a few days, to listen to complaints, and correct errors. Many of the heavy taxpayers appeared, but the average property-owner, the man with a small home, permitted the opportunity to pass, feeling that it would do him no good to complain.

As a result the hap-hazard valuation and now, when taxes are due, he realizes for the first time, that he has been unjustly dealt with. These are not isolated cases, as they apply to this class of property in all parts of the city.

The commission was expected to raise the assessment, on all kinds of property, and this was done to the Queen's taste, as was attested by the five million dollar advance. In dealing with real estate the fact was ignored that Janesville is not a going town, and that the average house and lot when sold, is sold at a sacrifice of from twenty-five to thirty-three per cent of what it cost. As a result, all property of this kind was put in at cost plus a liberal addition, in many cases.

There are hundreds of vacant lots in the city today that can be bought for two-thirds their assessed value, and hundreds of houses in the same condition. Much of this property is the property of men in very moderate circumstances. They feel that they have been unjustly dealt with, and they have, and are entitled to relief.

THEORETICAL AND ACADEMIC.

President-elect Wilson was the guest of the Commercial club at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago, Saturday night. The club is a strong business men's organization and about three hundred members were present to hear what the incoming president had to say about his policy and proposed plans.

They were treated to a sermon, for Mr. Wilson frankly admitted that he knew nothing about business, and then proceeded to tell them how it should be conducted, using the golden rule as a basis. He classed all monopolies as bad, and said that unless they voluntarily disappeared, it was the duty of the government to put them out of business. And yet there are many good monopolies, as everybody knows who has given the matter any thought.

He is not a financier, and yet was free to criticize our banks and commercial system, stating that the credit of this country must be placed at the disposal of everybody, on equal terms. That's a fine proposition from a textbook standpoint, but too impractical to merit discussion. The following paragraphs briefly summarize his speech. They read well and commend the author, as a man of good talent.

"The business future of this country does not depend upon the government of the United States. It depends upon the business men of the United States.

"The thing which is done only under the whip of the law is done imperfectly, reluctantly, sometimes sullenly, and never successfully.

"You cannot have prosperity personally conducted.

"I want to take sternness out of this country. I want to see suspicion dissipated. * * * My dearest hope in my administration is that prejudices such as have been its evils may be dissolved and destroyed—the prejudices between sections, for example.

"America has come upon a new period of thinking and she is going to think her way out to a triumphant solution of her difficulties.

"There are four sets of things which have to be done:

"In the first place we have to husband and administer the common resources of this country for the common benefit.

"The raw materials obtainable in this country for every kind of manufacture and industry must be at the disposal of everybody in the United States upon the same terms.

"You must put the credit of this country at the disposal of everybody on equal terms.

"And on top of all this we must set to it that the business of the United States is set absolutely free of every feature of monopoly."

THE INHERITANCE TAX.

One of the freak bills now being prepared for the legislature, provides that all inheritances shall revert to the state. The argument advanced is that all children will thus start life on an equal footing, as there will be no favored class. Just what will happen to the widows had not been considered, but they would probably be come pensioners of the state. If this is progress, God save the commonwealth.

The inheritance tax by the way, has but little to recommend it from any angle. It is a demand for tribute, of the brain and accumulation of a generation passed, to aid in supporting the generation now in control—a draft on the storehouse of capital to pay the running expenses of extravagant state and federal administrations.

There may be some justice in this kind of a law, for the nations of the old world, where the masses are serfs, and where landed rights are vested in the hands of a small group of landlords, but conditions in this free land of equal opportunity are different.

The incentive to save, and provide for the home, after the bread-winner has departed, spurs ambition, and develops the best that is in us. If the savings of a lifetime are to be scattered to the four winds, for the benefit of the masses, the disposition to save loses force, and the desire to become spendthrifts is encouraged. The inheritance tax, as applied to this country, is legalized socialism. It is bad enough now, and Wisconsin can afford to let it alone.

The city of Superior is demanding the enforcement of law, and the people are considering a recall, because the mayor does not seem to be in sympathy with the demand. The socialists of Milwaukee are also dissatisfied with the city administration and recall petitions are now being circulated against the mayor and half a dozen aldermen. There's nothing like the recall to furnish employment to busy people.

The total vote for president in 1912 was only about 150,000 more than in 1908, indicating that the spirit of indifference was widespread. Taking out the women's vote, in half a dozen states, the vote of the men was half a million short of four years ago. There are a lot of people living in this country, who have but little claim on the protection and privileges furnished.

Judge Lindsey of Denver, recently had committed to his court, four little girls, ten years old, who confessed to robbing houses of jewelry and valuables to the extent of $1,000. The children claimed that the suggestion to commit crime, came from moving picture shows. The city of Denver can well afford to establish a more rigid censorship.

The auto thieves and bandits which have infested Chicago of late, seem to be boys under twenty. The pace is too swift for the rising generation, and the boys are not entirely to blame.

A PURE MOMENT

Oh, Them Wimmen.
'Twas a dark and dismal day in merrie England. The fog was dense, and mud was deep and the rain it drizzled dolefully as good Queen Elizabeth, she of the Pains firework hair, better known to her bride partners as Liz, started for her walk.

Now it happens that there was a fine old sport by the name of Sir Walter Raleigh, who had been making eye-gawks at Queen Liz. He was tired of working for a living and the old throne looked better to him than a feather bed looks to a man who has been shoeing mules all day. He tried to get a stand-in with Liz by making a trip to America, but said trip, while it was a good press agent stunt for Walt, didn't cop the heart and hand of Queen Liz. Oh, no. She was an old maid for fair.

Walt kept banding around and making a muddle of himself, however, and upon this certain rainy day, when Liz went out for a constitutional, he was lurking behind the telephone poles in the immediate vicinity. Finally Queen Liz came to a spot in the road where the asphalt had been worn baldheaded and the mud had formed. She had to cross.

"Here is my chance," hissed Sir Walt between his teeth, and he ran to the mud-hole, over it so that she could trip lightly and gaily across without accumulating any English really upon her slippers. And she tripped across.

"That ought to knock off the per-simmon," thought Walt to himself. "If she won't fall for a neat and a piece of chivalry like that, there will never be anything doing."

He said: "How about it now, Liz? Do I get you?"

Not on your zinc etching. That's no way to win 'em. What did Liz go and do to him, after he had been so polite? She went and let them shop his pompadour off right close under his chin. That's what she went and done to him.

Oh, them wimmen.

According to Uncle Abner.
Mr. Amos Butts, our gentlemanly and congenial undertaker, also lively, feed and sales stables and folding chairs to rent, says, by gravity, the people of our village don't encourage home industries at all and they don't seem to think that an undertaker has got to make an honest living. There has been only one funeral in three years and that I or was shipped in from out of town. Amos says he can't see what he old people of this town are waiting for. He says there ain't a cent or him in a ceteranarian.

Every fellow ought to have an aim in life. Then maybe he can get a job shootin' glass balls in some wild west show.

Hank Tumms always buys domestic cigars when he wants to smoke it home.

Purdy always carries his lunch to work with him, but he eats it before he starts so as to save time at noon.

Old Lafa Tibbs says when he was in the army he was where the bullets was thickest, but Abe Renfrew says that is a darn lie for the bullets was all the same thickness and he knows it.

Lena Higgins says she always stops smokin' during a political campaign, but she knows he has added at least twenty years to his life by so doing.

The old philosopher who said there was nothing impossible in this world ever tried to get a real poem published in a fifteen-cent magazine.

It is natural for a fellow to worry if he is going to be hanged, but it doesn't do not partickler good, at that.

If every woman spent as much time thinkin' about marriage before the ceremony as she does afterwards, there would be fewer divorces in this country.

A Conversationalist.

A stranger came to me.
He was a pleasant man.
He had, for sale, insurance
On the endowment plan.
He started conversation
And started with a yin:
Never heard of a fellow who
Could hold a torch to him.
He argued all the morning
And didn't get the hunch
When I got up and left him.
And went out to my lunch.
When I got back I found him
Still talking "twenty-pay"
I do not think he realized
That I had been away.
Kept right at my business
Till dewy evening came.
But he did not desert me:
He sat right by my side,
Left him there still talking
When I turned out the light
And started home to dinner.
I guess he talked all night.

Pauline Wayne.
(Pauline Wayne, the famous White House cow presented to President Taft by Senator Ike Stephens of Wisconsin will be supplanted by a cow presented to President-elect Wilson by an Iowa man.)

You have been a faithful cow,
Pauline Wayne.
But we've got to lose you now,
Pauline Wayne.
And it seems a burning shame
When you just have won your fame
That no more we'll hear your name
Pauline Wayne.

You have served our country well,
Pauline Wayne.
And the scribbles that loved to tell,
Pauline Wayne.
Of the wondrous stunts you've done
Of blue ribbons you have won
You have added to our fun,
Pauline Wayne.

You have earned all your renown,
Pauline Wayne.
You have never fallen down,
Pauline Wayne.
With your milk you have stood pat,
You have kept our Bill Taft fat,
There is not a doubt of that,
Pauline Wayne.

It is time to say "goodby,"
Pauline Wayne.
And we do it with a sigh,
Pauline Wayne.
When Taft's cabinet is through
And has faded from the view,
We will ever remember you,
Pauline Wayne.

ELECTORS MET AT MADISON TO CAST WISCONSIN VOTE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Jan. 13.—The presidential electors for Wisconsin convened at noon today to cast the Wisconsin electoral vote for Wilson and Marshall. Louis Bohmrich of Milwaukee was elected president, and Edward Luckow of Baraboo, secretary. Pending the arrival of Wendell A. Anderson of La Crosse, from Milwaukee, where he missed the train, the electors were taken to lunch by David Davies, and adjournment was taken until 2 p. m.

ONE MAN KILLED; ANOTHER HURT BY VICIOUS HORSE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Jan. 13.—After John Trudell had been fatally kicked by a vicious horse while working for the L. Stevens Lumber Company at Corlies, Mich., Alfred Lemay, was sent to drive the animal. Within an hour he also had been badly injured by the same horse. Both men were rushed to a hospital in Escanaba where Trudell died. Lemay will recover.

BILL WILL ENCOURAGE CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 12.—A consolidated country school that will teach two years of agriculture and two years of domestic science is proposed by Assemblyman Axel Johnson of Polk county in a bill which he will introduce this week. The plan is to have the state grant an additional aid for this high school work that would not under the present plan be granted for consolidation as country schools.

"Such schools would be great practical value," said Assemblyman Johnson. "Consolidation of schools is a good thing. At the present time the state does not offer a sufficient aid to encourage schools to consolidate. The additional state aid to be obtained under the bill which I will propose will accomplish this.

"The community would benefit by such a plan. By consolidation the best of teachers could be hired and a school of high standard efficiency would be maintained. First there would be the regular common school education, as at the present time, through the eight grades. In addition to this the girls would be given two years of domestic science and the boys two years of instruction in agricultural subjects."

Johnson's plan is very similar to the Page county agricultural school of Iowa. He would have a ten-acre farm round the school building that would be tilled by the pupils of the school. He believes that the children should be obliged to apply their education in a practical manner.

SIR HORACE PLUNKETT GUEST OF LEGISLATURE.

Prominent Irish Politician Will Give an Address on Farm Credits Tonight.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 12.—Speaker Martin Hull of the assembly announced today that Sir Horace Plunkett would be the guest of the legislature this evening. The visitor has been in ill health for some time past, but his health will permit him to address the members of the legislature on farm credits and cooperation.

Through the efforts of Sir Horace the plan of rural credits was introduced in Ireland a few years ago and the success of the idea has been remarkable. Sir Horace arrived in Madison last night and this morning called upon the governor. He will spend the afternoon conferring with officials at the university and will leave late tonight for Colorado.

GARMENTS WORKERS MARCHED THROUGH STREETS SINGING

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Jan. 12.—50,000 garment workers on strike in New York for increased pay and better working conditions marched singing through the factory districts today and disbanded at Union Square for an open air mass meeting. Of the marchers approximately 15,000 were women.

CLAIMS INDIGESTION IS A CAUSE OF COMPLAINTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Jan. 13.—The complaints to the Wisconsin railroad commission by passengers on street cars, charging inadequacy of service is often the result of indigestion, is the contention of T. W. Montgomery, president of the Southern Wisconsin Railway company, in a letter to the commission.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

THE MYSTERY.

In one of the ranges of the Rocky mountains is a certain sheer cliff. Halfway down the precipice is a grassy ledge where foot of man has never trod.

Only the sunshine and the wind and the rains and the birds go there.

And—
On that shelf of shale, inaccessible to man and but dimly shown though a powerful glass, grow violets. Year by year they bloom there as do the violets down in the valley below.

Year after year, through thousands of years perhaps, that shelving rock has held its banquet of blue. And for thousands of years, perhaps, May day will kiss the violets into bloom.

Now—
Do you fancy the charm of those un-bent flowers is lacking, the coloring less delicate, the stems less graceful than the violets of the valley?

Certainly not.
And why? Of what use are the pretty blooms? No human hand can pluck them; no human eye can feast on them.

Why the violets?
Why did God make them? If they can neither be seen nor plucked to put over the heart of woman nor to gladden the heart of a little child, what were they made for?

What is the mystery?
Why is it that "Till many a flower is born to blush unseen?"

For, mind you, there can be no doubt that an increasing purpose runs through all. The bunch of violets on the pebbles ledge is working at its secret destiny just as you and I are working away at ours.

The violets do not know.
We do not know.

If we only knew! If we knew the secret of that mass of blue on that shelving rock we should know the secret of our own lives and the riddle of the universe.

As Tennyson says:
Little flower, if I could understand
What you are, root and all, and all in all,
I should know what God and man is.

We do not know, nor do the violets, "where his islands lift their frosted palms in air." We only know, and the violets know, we cannot drift beyond his love and care.

INSTALL GOVERNORS IN SEVERAL STATES

Missouri's New Governor Installed.
Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 12.—Governor M. Major was inaugurated today in the assembly chamber of the temporary capitol. Both branches of the legislature were assembled there, as well as members of the supreme court, incoming state officers and Governor Hadley and the retiring officers. The hall was lavishly decorated and the balconies were thronged with spectators. Immediately after taking the oath Governor Major delivered his inaugural address.

Utah Lawmaker's Assembled.
Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 12.—The Utah legislature assembled today and proceeded to the work of organization. The Republicans control both houses. Revision of the state election laws, reforms in the methods of assessment and taxation, and a mothers' pension law are among the important subjects on the legislative program. No United States senator is to be chosen at this session.

Kansas Has Democratic Governor.
Topeka, Kas., Jan. 12.—George H. Hodges (Democrat) was sworn in as governor of Kansas today, succeeding Walter R. Stubbs (Republican). Mr. Hodges is the first Democrat elected governor in Kansas in fifteen years and his installation was made an occasion of enthusiasm for the thousands of Democrats who came from all parts of the state to participate in the ceremonies.

Governor Stubbs and Governor-elect Hodges were escorted to the State House by several companies of Kansas National Guard. In the assembly chamber the oath of office was administered to the new executive by Chief Justice William A. Johnston. The other state officers, elected in November, all of them Republicans, were sworn in. In a brief inaugural address Governor Hodges reaffirmed the ante-election pledges of his party.

Test Case for Milliners.

New York, Jan. 12.—Much interest is manifested in the millinery trade in the outcome of the case of Miss Helen McCulloch a milliner, who was arraigned in court today to stand trial on a charge of displaying in her shop twenty aigrettes. The case was brought as a test of the new law which makes it a misdemeanor to sell or possess the plumage of certain birds.

WELLS-FARGO COMPANY WANTS VALUATION LOWERED.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 12.—Denying that the price paid will have any material effect upon the work of express companies, but that the inauguration of the system has had a tendency to lower the value of bonds and stocks of express companies, Attorney Marks, for the Wells-Fargo & Co., Express has asked the state tax commission to lower the preliminary valuation of the company from $650,000 to $350,000. Inasmuch as the commission has held the value of the company's property in Wisconsin at over $500,000 for several years it is believed the request will be denied.

SENATOR LEAVES HOSPITAL TO ATTEND LEGISLATURE.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Jan. 13.—Senator Isaac T. Bishop, who has been ill for nearly a year, feels so much improved the last few weeks that he expects to be able to attend the session of the legislature. He is still feeble, but says that he is gaining in strength every day. Senator Bishop is sixty-nine years old. About a year ago Senator Bishop was injured in a railroad accident. During the last few months he has spent much of his time in hospitals. Before coming here to attend the session he had been in a Chicago hospital five weeks. He has been a member of the state senate since 1906.

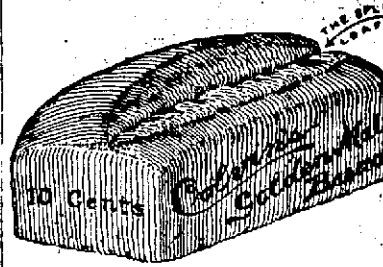

PORTUGAL HEAD TO RESIGN, IS RUMOR.

Manuel De Arriaga.
A rumor is current in Portugal that Manuel De Arriaga, president of the republic, intends to resign from office. It has not been confirmed, however, and the president continues his efforts to organize a new cabinet. Republican government in Portugal has hardly proved a success, and De Arriaga is reported a despair of giving the people a prosperous and peaceful administration.

INTERESTING POINT AS TO POSTAL ZONE

JANESVILLE UNIT TAKEN UP IN PROTEST WITH WASHINGTON DEPARTMENT.

MAP MAKERS' VIEWS

Hold That Government Map Makers Have Made Serious Error Relative to Use of First Zone.

Have the government map makers made an error in their calculations of the various units that go to make up the basis of the new Parcel Post system, extending this error outside the units to the first zone, or are the various map concerns in the country in error? This is the question that confronts the post office department just at the present time.

The contention that the post office department is at error and that their errors have already caused serious trouble to persons using the system, is raised by a Des Moines, Iowa map company and they have taken the matter up directly with the authorities at Washington. This company contends the government maps are wrong and their correct and quote the following paragraph from the law prescribing the various units and zones to uphold their contention.

The law they state, provides that any system of zones shall start from the center of any given unit of area in unit No. 2263, which is Janesville unit, this center is located between Evansville and Fellow's Station. This law states that this unit is composed of an area thirty minutes square, identical with a quarter of the area formed by the intersecting parallels of latitude and meridians of longitude and that these units shall be the basis of the eight postal zones.

This would give the Janesville unit approximately, for local rates, the cities of Beloit, Janesville, Evansville, Edgerton and villages to the west, but places Milton and Milton Junction in the first zone. It is the question of the first zone that has brought about the difficulty and as Janesville was the city named in the complaint filed at Washington by the Des Moines map company it is interesting locally to note just what this zone comprises under the government and the map makers' idea of the construction of the law.

The laws says the first zone shall include all territory within such a quadrangle in conjunction with every contiguous quadrangle, representing an area having a mean radial distance from the center of any given unit of area. This is construed by the map makers to mean that a circle drawn from the center of unit 2263, the local unit, located between Evansville and Fellow's station would have a circumference of 150 miles, a hundred miles across in each direction. This would include fifteen units, all being subject to the first zone rates. In the government maps however the first zone is touched to include only nine units located in other words the circumference of the circle is but thirty-five miles instead of fifty from the center of the unit.

The post office department state their maps are correct and in a Washington dispatch explain the variance is due to the fact that a degree of longitude is considerably shorter in the northern than in the southern portion of the country, that the mistake is unavoidable and that no injustice is involved. According to this explanation of the variation in longitude a package may be sent north and south in the first zone the full fifty miles but in the northern part of the country less than fifty, or approximately thirty-five miles and forty in the vicinity of Janesville.

They give a further explanation that while the inhabitants of the southern section of the country have an apparent advantage in this situation the participant holds there is no actual injustice involved. The variation is unavoidable so long as the unit involves longitude, and this basis was found by careful study to be the most feasible.

The question now arises which is right—the government or the map makers. Meanwhile thousands of maps have been prepared and distributed by map concerns which are correct. They all show fifteen units affected while the government maps show but nine. In the case of Janesville unit as the center the first zone under the map makers circle, entirely covered or touched part of the following counties in Wisconsin and Iowa: Monroe, Juneau, Adams, Marquette, Green Lake, Winnebago, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, Washington, Ozaukee, Washington Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Lake, Illinois, Cook, Ill., McHenry, Ill., Kane, Ill., Boone, De Kalb, Winnebago, Stephenson, Carroll and Joe Davies counties, Ill., and Clinton and Jackson in Iowa, thence back into Wisconsin taking in Grant, Iowa, LaFayette, Richland, Sauk, Vernon, Columbia, Dodge, Jefferson, Waukesha, Dane, Green, Iowa, Walworth and Rock.

The government map however drops out Monroe, Juneau, Adams, Marquette, Green Lake, Winnebago, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, Washington, Ozaukee, Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Lake, Cook, McHenry, Kane, DeKalb, Ill., McHenry, Ill., Kane, Ill., Boone, De Kalb, Winnebago, Stephenson, Carroll and Joe Davies counties, Ill., and Clinton and Jackson in Iowa, thence back into Wisconsin taking in Grant, Iowa, LaFayette, Richland, Sauk, Vernon, Columbia, Dodge, Jefferson, Waukesha, Dane, Green, Iowa, Walworth and Rock.

Postmaster Valentine holds that the government map is correct and as the post office department has nothing to do but follow the maps presented to their use, the question will be undecided until an official ruling is made. Meanwhile the map makers contention that six units are excluded from the first zone rates will cause considerable discussion throughout the country. What is true of the Janesville unit is also true of others in the same parallels if the government is correct.

CITY IS ASSURED ANTI-SALOON AID IN CASE OF FIGHT

Detective Work, Speakers, and Counsel Offered Localities by State Society Says Rev. Lean at Union Meeting.

Should Janesville citizens launch a campaign against the saloons for the establishment of no-license, they would be entitled to the services of the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League detective agency, to speakers sent out by the organization to aid in the campaign or advice from the offices how to proceed, all free of charge upon request. This was the statement of the Rev. J. S. Lean of Milwaukee, one of the league officers, at the union service at the Presbyterian church last evening.

Rev. Lean in his address described the organization of the league and the amount of money which he needed mainly to carry on the work. He then went into some detail in regard to the work which is accomplished along the lines of legislative enactment, through the organization of law enforcement societies and the carrying on of temperance campaigns in various localities. It was in this connection that he brought up the offer of the detective bureau and the prohibition speakers which were furnished to any city on application to the state headquarters.

This explanation of the league's work to a Janesville audience right at this time had peculiar force with many on account of the present recall agitation. Although the issue of no-license has not been brought into the movement thus far, there is an element among those opposing the recall who would favor a vote on no-license should the second petition be filed. In that event Rev. Lean's offer of assistance from the state league might be accepted by the local anti-saloon faction.

Rev. Lean closed his address with a general exposition of the evils of the liquor traffic. He drew some sad word-pictures and referred feelingly to the distress and sorrow of the drunkard's home. This was the annual anti-saloon address for Janesville and subscriptions to the state fund were taken at the close of the meeting.

HELD BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR W. O. DOUGLAS AT HANOVER

Pleasant Party Held Friday at Home Built to Replace Residence Destroyed by Cyclone.

A pleasant party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Douglas of Hanover on Friday, in honor of Mr. Douglas' birthday. The party was held in the home built to replace the residence which was almost totally destroyed by the cyclone which passed through Rock county in 1911. Mrs. Douglas invited the relatives to dine with them and a most enjoyable time was spent. A fur coat was presented as a reminder of the occasion.

Mr. Douglas is the youngest son of the late E. O. Douglas and the youngest grandson of David Douglas, who came to Wisconsin in 1841, and who received the first receipt for money paid for the Janesville Gazette. Since the cyclone wrought such destruction at their farm, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas have rebuilt the home, erected a modern barn, a granary, a poultry and carriage house and a corn-crib to replace the buildings which were blown down.

EVERYTHING PREPARED FOR POULTRY EXHIBIT

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR OPENING OF POULTRY SHOW TOMORROW COMPLETED TODAY.

BIRDS ARRIVED TODAY

Exhibitors Brought in Their Fancy Fowls Today and Assignment of Coops Was Made.

Final preparations for the opening of the poultry show of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry association, at the auditorium building, will be completed by tonight, and everything will be in readiness for the opening of the big show tomorrow morning. There were a few visitors to the show this afternoon for a preliminary look at the birds on exhibition, but the official opening is set for tomorrow morning, and the judging of the fancy fowls on exhibition will commence tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Keeler of Winneconne, Ind., and Mr. Roberts of Ft. Atkinson, two experts on poultry, will do the judging.

A committee from the poultry association—P. H. Green, Edward Amerpohl, John McVear, and others—have been at the auditorium building all day today, supervising the placing of the coops and superintending the other preparations made. The number of entries this year are fully as large as last year, and may, it is thought, go over the figures for the 1912 show. Up to a late hour this afternoon a compilation of the figures had not been made, as there were a few of the exhibitors who had entered their fowls, who had not yet arrived. By tonight or early tomorrow morning, all of the exhibits will be arranged.

Commencing early this morning and continuing throughout the day, pens containing the fancy fowls entered in competition have been arriving at the building, and were put in the coops there. All birds in each class, as is usual, have been placed together. A new method of arranging the coops to give additional space for exhibition purposes has been put into execution. The coops have been placed in rows running lengthwise of the building, instead of crosswise, giving plenty of space for all exhibits. In the center of the floor, as a novelty for the exhibitors, a portion of the floor has been spaced off, and wire netting has been placed in position for an interesting exhibit. In this wild ducks, wild geese and other wild game and homing pigeons have been placed.

At some of the shows held in previous years, the attendance has been lessened by the severe weather, but the officials of the show, taking today as an indication, are hopeful of favorable weather throughout the week and are hopeful of a record number of visitors.

Telephone Girls' Dance.

About a hundred couples attended the telephone girls' dance held in Mayes's hall last Friday night.

The hall was beautifully decorated with purple and white crepe paper woven in and out and large white telephone bells suspended here and there further carried out the effect as did the banners and pennants used on the walls.

The local telephone girls wore white shirt waists with blue skirts and blue "Hello" banners.

Hatch's orchestra of Janesville furnished splendid music and the Central house a fine supper. Judges from all reports the evening was a grand success.

Varieties of Sharks.

The many varieties of the shark are divided into the littoral, the pelagic and the bathybal, according as they are found near the shore, or in mid-ocean, or at great depths. Besides those mentioned there are the liver, the hound, the shovel-nose, the tiger, the hammer-head, the porbeagle, the fox or thresher, and the basking shark, sometimes, though wrongly, called the sunfish.

Bachelors and Insanity.

More bachelors than married men go insane, according to a report submitted to the secretary of the interior. Many married men have their thinking done for them, and consequently, do not have so great a strain on their think factory.—Nashville Tennessean.

Sale Continues All This Week

Our Big Sale Is Pulling. It Is Pulling Hard

WE are determined to make it pull as it has not pulled yet. Half the magnetism is in the prices—half in the quality of the goods. The special values have been instantly appreciated and the way they are being gobbled up is a caution. Our sale is fairly at its zenith this week; all the selling of last week has not lightened either values or variety. Last week's sales have been larger and the purchasers more enthusiastic than ever before.

Remember that Saturday the 18th will close this price-making event. Stock up on shoes before that date. Here are a few special prices among the many which we are making this week.

Men's Tan Shoes, $3.00 and $3.50 Values at $1.98

Boys' High Cut Shoes, sizes up to 6, all $2.50 and $3.00 values at $1.98

Ladies' Dancing Pumps at $2.35

The following list of prices which were in effect last week will apply to all purchases made during this week with the exception of the above specials.

Personal or Impersonal Cooking

A PROMINENT Englishman commenting on us and our institutions says that the food provided in the large hotels is as good as can be expected outside of a small restaurant.

It is a criticism that has more in it than seems, for if most of us were offered the choice of a meal at a large hotel or a small restaurant, would we not take the large hotel? Yet the right kind of small restaurant would in all probability furnish us with a more palatable meal. For in the right kind of small restaurant, one gets personal cookery. And delightful individuality in cooking is as much to be desired as in anything else. All the places that are famous for their cookery are famous because of some personality. They become known through their chef. They are spoken of as Oscar's, or Josef's, or Madame Gruyere's. It is the personality of Oscar, or Josef, or Madame that is the sauce piquante of the cookery there.

It is this lack of personal cookery that makes the food offered in some restaurants and boarding houses so tasteless. It is as insipid as a person without any particular individuality. In certain kinds of restaurants from Maine to California, roast lamb tastes the same, and coffee is the same brown, insipid drink. The cook in these restaurants probably says, "Lamb's lamb," and salts and peppers it mechanically, with her mind on something else, slams it into the oven, and thinks cooking is beastly work anyway and she's going to get another job.

Whereas, the cook who adds personality to her cooking studies her roast carefully, noting its weight and quality, dusts with pepper and salt thoughtfully, to get just the right quantity, adds a bit of this herb, a hint of that spice, watches it assiduously, bastes it frequently, and sends it to the table with joy, knowing it is juicy and tender and has a flavor all its own.

She is putting herself into her work. She is expressing herself through her work. And isn't this more worth while, just for one's own sake, than to go expressionless?

Some of us look upon cooking as menial and beneath us. And we do not care very much what kind of cooking we turn out. But if we are going to do it, why not put ourselves into it? Why not give it personality and individuality and piquancy? Why not let it become famous in our circle, our village or our town? It is worth while to express our best selves in whatever medium we take up.

The Evening Chit-Chat
BY RUTH CAMERON

A NEW MEDICINE FOR REGRET.

ONE of the two most futile and foolish wastes of energy in the world is to worry over the future; the other is to regret the past.

The first is rather more common; the second rather more foolish. For whereas worry might possibly spur one on to action, regret cannot in any way affect the past. Things done are done. The moving finger writes, and having writ, moves on, not all your piety nor wit shall lure it back to cancel half a line, nor all your tears wash out a word of it.

All of which is just a prelude to the introduction of a medicine which may help anyone afflicted with the disease of regret.

It is the discovery of a friend of mine. She has always been afflicted with a tendency to this vitally sapping disease. Decisions are agony to her because she knows that the moment she has decided either way she will be seized with an attack of her chronic disease. All the advantages of the line of action which she has rejected marshal themselves before her mind and haunt her like avenging ghosts.

Recently this woman had to make a very important decision. She was to buy a house in which she would probably live many years. She was so fearful that she would do the wrong thing that she became almost hysterical over the matter. The selection finally narrowed down to a choice between two houses. She vacillated between these for about a month, asking everyone's advice and making up her mind three times a day.

When she finally took the fatal leap I was almost afraid to visit her for fear of finding her in a blue funk of regret. But to my surprise, I found her quite serene.

When I asked her if she had felt any regret she actually smiled. "Yes," she said, "I did at first. As soon as the disadvantages began to appear—you know there are always some disadvantages in any house that you don't find out until you actually live in it—I began to wish I had taken the other house, and to think of all its advantages. And then—I don't know how it happened—it suddenly came over me that if I HAD taken the other house, some unexpected disadvantages would have been sure to appear in that, and of course I shouldn't have known about the disadvantages of this one, and so I should have felt just the same about this house as I do about that one. Since then, every time I have started to regret the other house I've just put my mind right on that fact and you don't know how much it has helped."

Don't you think that's a wise point of view?

And not only in regard to selecting a house, but in regard to any decision. Whatever line of action you choose you will find some disadvantages in it, and by contrast the course you didn't choose will appear alluring. But don't be deceived by this. Keep constantly before your mind that there must be disadvantages in the other course which following it would have brought out. They may be less than the present evils but then, again, they may be more. Who knows?

So the next time you find yourself about to have an attack of the regret devils after a decision, try to exercise them with that medicine thought.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Answers to Inquiries.

Raised Graham Pancakes. In one-half cup lukewarm water dissolve one-half cup compressed yeast. Later in evening put on quart water in gallon crock with pinch of salt and dissolved yeast from cup, stirring up graham flour enough to make stiff batter. In morning put one pint water in extra dish with one-half teaspoon soda dissolved in same. Dip out enough batter from crock into the one pint of water and thin to right consistency for cakes. Always leave out at least one-half cup batter in crock for the next night's "setting," as that is the "raising" for as long as you care to "run" them.

Reset them every night (not using any more yeast) by adding water and a little salt and graham flour, same as in starting them. If any batter is left after making cakes, never put it back in crock, as the soda will sour what you should save for the "raising." I have given this recipe to several friends and they think it fine.

SUGGESTIVE DISHES.

Here is a new one of the old favorites:

Chili Con Carne.—Grind through a meat chopper one and a half pounds of beef, one and a half pounds of veal, a pound of pork, and a quarter of a pound of suet. Put into a large kettle, add a quart of tomatoes chopped fine, six large onions minced, and a quart of chili beans or lima beans. Season with salt and cayenne, adding a bay leaf. Tie up in a piece of cloth two teaspoonsful each of whole peppers and allspice and a few cloves. Fill an eight quart kettle with water and the mixture and cook six hours. The longer and slower it is cooked the better.

Hot Tamales.—This is another popular recipe often called for. Cover a chicken with water and stew until tender, salting the fowl when nearly done. Drain off the liquor, and when cool remove the fat. Cut up the meat and chop fine; season with paprika and garlic to taste. Make a thick mush of cornmeal and boiling water. Form the seasoned meat into rolls and incase each in the mush, making it into a long roll. Cover these rolls with the inner husks of the corn after they have been well washed. When the tamales are all wrapped in the husks, tie them up and return them to the liquor in which the chicken was cooked; add a few red peppers and cook fifteen minutes, drain and send to the table. The real Mexican tamales are highly seasoned with red pepper.

Pear Salad.—Pears cut in halves and garnished with balls of cream cheese and maraschino cherries, served with French dressing, makes a most delicious and attractive looking salad.

Soups and Purées.

Warm, nourishing soup taken into the stomach prepares it for the digestion of the heavier food which follows. Soup is better not taken too fast, but eaten slowly. We have not been a soup-eating nation, but we are fast learning the custom from our friends across the water. They have known for years that the extractives of meat are the greatest known stimulants to gastric digestion. Cream soups and purées (thick soups with vegetables) contain considerable nutriment, and with plenty of good butter and butter, furnish a good luncheon for both young and old.

Lentil Soup.

Material—Dried lentils, 1 pint; broth or stock, 2 quarts; onion, 1; bay leaf, 1; butter, 2 tablespoonsful; salt, pepper and crotons, chopped parsley and thyme.

Utensils—Barthen pot, measuring cup, tablespoon, spider, sieve. Direction—Soak the lentils overnight; stir in and wash them again, then put them into the earthen pot and cover with the cold broth or stock (good water may be used, but it is never so good.) Simmer an hour and a half. Fry the sliced onion, a sprig of chopped parsley, a pinch of thyme and bay leaf in the butter; add these to the lentils; cover and simmer half an hour longer. Rub through a sieve or colander; season to taste with salt and pepper and serve with crotons. This soup, with one cooked vegetable and simple salad and dessert, has all necessary food value for a dinner.

Kornlet and Tomato Purée. Material—Tomatoes, 1 can; onion, one-half slice; kornlet, one-half can; cream, one-half cup; sugar, one teaspoon; soda, 1 pint; flour, 1 tablespoon; butter, 2 tablespoons; salt and paprika.

Utensils—Double boiler, saucepan, HATS REORGANIZED WASHINGTON'S "SET."

With this equipment she set to work to make the white house the center of the official life of the country. She has succeeded beyond her hopes.

She completely reorganized Washington's social "set," showing the army and navy officers and their wives greater honor than they had enjoyed hitherto. She surrounded herself on all occasions, ceremonious or otherwise, with numbers of army and navy officers, and no matter how small the fetes, the officers appeared in their full regalia, "full dress" for winter-time affairs and "undress" for summer fetes. The yearly musicales and the springtime garden parties introduced by Mrs. Roosevelt were continued, but their official character was still more in evidence by the attendance of the president, accompanied by his aides.

Tablespoon, teaspoon, sieve.

Directions—Cover and cook the tomatoes slowly in the saucepan with the onion and sugar 15 minutes; add the soda and rub through the sieve. In the meantime have the kornlet and cream heating in double boiler. Rub butter and flour together and add to the strained tomatoes and cook until they begin to thicken. Then pour into the double boiler with the kornlet and season and mix well. Serve with buttered hot popcorn.

Suitable cooking utensils for soup-making are: meat board, meat knives, hardwood meat board, meat sieves, covered soup pot, saucepan, double boiler and wooden spoon.

Seasonings are turnips, carrots, celery, onions, celery salt, onion salt, parsley, bay leaves, rice, cloves and whole pepper.

Chopped vegetables should always be in the house to draw on when needed.

New York Oyster Broth. Material—Oysters, 3 pints; cold water, pint and a half; tomato sauce, 1 cup; salt, 1 teaspoon; paprika, one-half teaspoon; celery salt, one-quarter teaspoon.

Utensils—Saucepan, fine sieve, measuring cup, teaspoon. Directions—Pour the cold water over the oysters and look over the oysters carefully to remove bits of shell. Put the oysters over the fire in the saucepan and strain the liquor over them. Bring quickly to the boiling point and skim out the oysters, which may be used for salad, creamed oysters, etc. Heat the broth again and skim. Have ready a cup of tomato sauce and stir this into the oyster broth. Add the seasoning and serve with hot cheese wafers.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

(6)—I don't know. (7)—Yes.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy of 14. Have been going with a girl two years older than myself. (1)—Is it right for me to elope because my father scolded me for staying out till 12 o'clock with her? (2)—He objects to my going with her. Can you tell me why? (3)—Is it wrong for me to kiss her good night? I dearly love her and have been going with her for one year. I don't feel like giving her up.

READER. Laddie, you're just a "kid" and you don't know what love is—I mean man-and-woman love, any more than a baby does. And believe me when I say that the girl who is willing to put up with a boy of 14 is mighty hard up for a man. She isn't worth wasting your affection on her. Keep your heart until it is man's size and can tell a real woman.

(1)—You will be better off if you will stay home nights and improve yourself so that you will be worthy of a good woman when you are old enough. Everybody will laugh at you if you elope.

(2)—Your father knows a great deal more than you do and you would be wise to trust him.

(3)—This question is answered in the beginning of my talk to you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am fellow in love with a nice young fellow. He didn't come to see me last Sunday and hasn't come since. What do you think turned him? I am a well known and respected girl among my friends. I am 18; my friend is 24.

(2)—I am a hairdresser and dressmaker. Do you think these are good trades or did I waste my time learning them?

(3)—Shall I call up my friend and ask him why he acted in such a manner? (4)—Shall I give him another trial? (5)—How can I forget him? (6)—Does he care for me? (7)—Is twice a week too often to go to dances.

CATHERINE. (1)—He may have a good explanation. Better wait and see what he has to say. (2)—They are very good trades.

(3)—Are you sure you have done nothing to offend him? Have you always been modest and ladylike in his company? Sometimes a girl shows her affection too much and a man gets tired of it. If you feel that you have done nothing wrong, wait until you see him and then ask him, very prettily, what has happened to sever your friendship. Tell him if it is your fault you would like to know so that you can correct it.

(4)—Yes, if he wants it and you know he is a respectable young man.

(5)—Read advice to "Ruth."

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

MME. FREMSTAD'S "SPARTAN REGIME."

"Oatmeal and milk is my dinner and I eat it early," says Mme. Olive Fremstad, distinguished lyric tragedienne, who has climbed to the top by hard work. "Success means a Spartan regime for the sake of health," she says. Simple, nourishing food is as favorable to success in any work requiring superior intellect, endurance and perseverance as it is in the physical contests in which the simple ration has been fully demonstrated superior. "Spartan regime" suggests self-denial, but there is no training, physical or mental, that does not require self-denial and self-control. The satisfaction of attainment, far outweighs the likes of discipline. The student who wishes to excel can derive as much benefit from scientific diet as the athlete can in the physical contest.

DISCUSSED IDEALS IN HOMES AND CHILDREN

INTERESTING SERMON WAS DELIVERED BY REV. HOFFMEISTER AT ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH.

THE HOME OF TIMOTHY

Was Taken as an Example, And in His Sermon Pastor Showed Influence Of Grandmother and Mother On Young Man's Life.

The ideal home and the type of son or daughter that such a home produces, were discussed yesterday morning by Rev. E. O. Hoffmeister in his morning sermon at St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church. The home of Timothy as told of in the Bible, was taken as the model, and the text of the sermon was taken from the second epistle of Paul the Apostle to Timothy, first chapter, and the first five verses, particular emphasis being laid on the fifth verse, which reads: "When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also."

The circumstances attending the writing of this epistle to Timothy were taken up by the pastor, who dwelt on the fact that the apostle was at the time fully aware that his life and work were soon to be ended and the epistle was the last he wrote, but shows a cheerful tone. The home of which the apostle speaks in the verses, said the pastor, is one that gives him a feeling of peace and joy as he thinks of it. The character of the home made it firm and stable, and Timothy was a young man much to be admired.

That the faith of the grandmother and of the mother of the home mentioned in the epistle made it possible that it should be blessed with a child such as was Timothy, was the assertion of Rev. Hoffmeister. Faith, the foundation of Timothy's home life, should be the foundation of the life in every Christian home.

The one sad element of this story of Timothy's home life was the fact that in the epistle no mention is made of Timothy's father, and there is nothing to show that he had anything to do with the upbringing of the character of Timothy. Too often, said the pastor, the father is only a negative quantity in this respect in the home, and times worse than a negative quantity in setting a bad example for his children. Timothy's father, however, was a Greek and a man of culture, but he did not have much part in the development of Timothy's character.

Timothy's whole life was surrounded with an environment which was alive with the men of God of the past. The child's mind was directed toward his Creator. Every mother and father is troubled when confronted with the problems of childhood and parenthood, and here St. Paul points out a typical son who is pleasing in the eyes of the apostle.

Some people, said Rev. Hoffmeister, spend their whole lives in fear, and because of that in trying to be good. That, however, is the wrong way to look at it, and the Apostle Paul tries to give a wider viewpoint to faith. Get a right conception of faith and that is the starting point for a right home, the essence of faith and confidence in Jesus.

The pastor spoke of the belief of Lois and Eunice, Timothy's grandmother and mother, in the coming of the Messiah, and how when the Apostle Paul had come to their home as a messenger of the coming of Jesus, they had received him with rejoicing. This belief had been instilled into the mind of Timothy, and his faith had endeared him to the apostle. Likewise, said the pastor if your children are to be pleasing to God and man, they must be reared to faith in God. He also spoke of the necessity of the son or daughter being subjected to the will of the father and mother. Particular stress was given to the idea that the son should grow up in the work of the church, and take the place of his father in the church work.

UNSANITARY HOUSING CONDITIONS IN CITY

Visiting Nurse States That Number of Families Are Living in Dwellings Unfit for Habitation.

That some homes are to be found in Janesville as unsanitary and conducive to ill health and disease as any in the congested tenement districts of a large city is reported by the city visiting nurse, Miss Agnes Anderson. In some cases, she says, this condition is the result of the shiftlessness of the tenants, but in others the houses are in such a dilapidated condition, so badly located and poorly lighted that it is quite impossible to make them fit for habitation.

The visiting nurse has occasion to visit many homes in the city in consequence of her inspection of the children and young people in the city schools. Last week she completed a medical inspection of the high school students and examined 140 out of 200 pupils at St. Patrick's school. The inspection there will be completed today.

When making the inspections of school children the nurse takes note of those children who appear undernourished, or are defective or diseased, and then makes it a point to visit their homes to confer with their parents or guardians and see what can be done for them. Often it is found that the conditions under which they live are responsible for their condition.

At one home visited by the nurse the mother was tubercular. The room adjoining hers was occupied by the children was so dark that it was necessary to burn a lamp at mid-day. No ray of sunshine penetrated the place. The house was altogether unsanitary, had no plumbing of any kind, and the tenants were not able to keep it in fit condition. The father of the family was prevailed upon to send his tubercular wife to an institution for needed treatment.

The most squalid dwelling that the nurse has yet visited in this city was found in one of the large buildings in the heart of the city. The mother is the wage earner of the family, the condition of the father being such that he is unable to work. The two daughters, both minor girls have no supervision, and there is no pretense at housekeeping. In another instance the care-taker of a home was in an intoxicated condition when visited, and the mother of the children there being dead.

The visiting nurse believes that one of the best things that could be done for the city would be the construction of good houses or model tenements that would be rented to the poor at a price they could pay. There are not enough such buildings in the city to supply the demand and the poor are obliged to put up with insanitary quarters for the want of means to pay for sanitary ones.

One of the problems to be solved is what can be done for the children who need treatment and whose parents are not able to pay for it. Larger cities have free dispensaries where medicines can be obtained, funds to provide poor children with glasses when they need them, and other needed relief machinery but as Janesville does not have them some other means must be found to give poor children the treatment they need.

TWO INTERESTING PLAYS WERE PRESENTED SUNDAY

"East Lynne" and "Master and Man" Were Productions at Myers Theatre.

Two good performances at the Myers theatre on Sunday, matinee and evening, met the approval of good sized audiences. "East Lynne," given in the afternoon, although an old play, took on new life under the clever interpretation of the company. The pathetic and beautiful story of the place was told in graphic and heart-rending manner by the cast. In the evening "Master and Man," a labor problem play, proved very acceptable. Herbert O'Connor was easily a favorite in both performances.

SHOWS WILSON VOTE LESS THAN BRYAN'S

Interesting Comparisons May be Made From Tables of Popular Vote on President.

Governor Wilson's popular vote in the fall election was some 100,000 less than that of Col. Bryan's in 1905 according to the figures on the 1912 popular vote which are now compiled. The figures plainly show what was evident long before the election that Wilson's success was certain through the split in the republican ranks. Col. Roosevelt secured a popular plurality over President Taft of some 600,000. The 1912 figures are: 1912—Wilson, Dem. 6,291,878 Roosevelt, Pro. 4,123,428 Taft, Rep. 3,484,896 Debs, Soc. 897,690 Chafin, Prohib. 268,762

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

BY WALT MASON

Oh, Christmas day is past and gone, we saw New Year's depart; and Groundhog day full soon will dawn, the day that stirs the next heart. So let us wear HOLIDAY, our Christmas grins and do our shopping now, before the groundhog rush begins—the sanest plan, I swear. Oh, Groundhog day, leaving your praise throughout the busy town, and if the groundhog hears my voice, I hope he'll let them down. Oh, Groundhog day, we don't suspend our dietary rules, and gobble rich things without end like forty kinds of tools. No indigestion racks our frames when Groundhog day is past, we do not need the doctor's games, we do not dope or fast. No slippers come by every mail from climes where slippers grow, no cheerful chumps come up and wail. "A groundhog box on you!" No presents on a groundhog tree stir up your deadly fire, no foolish Santa do you be, with whiskers all alive. Oh, Groundhog day is safe and sane, a festive day and kind, which doesn't jar your soul or strain your body or your mind. So let us ring the groundhog bell, until the day is o'er, and may the groundhog spirit dwell with us forever more.

TOWN LINE

Town Line, Beloit and Rock, Jan. 11.—Miss Julia Lunn, who has been quite sick with the grippe is recovering and hopes to resume her care of Mrs. Mercer the first of the week. Rev. C. J. Eddy of Rockton was a visitor at the home of his brother, J. C. Eddy, Wednesday.

There have been several victims of grippe in the neighborhood, all of whom are recovering, among them being members of the D. Behling and L. J. McCrea families.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blynn and son, Clarence, of Hebron, were visitors at the home of L. J. McCrea the first of the week.

Berger Bonstad of Nestrund, Norway, has come to spend some time at the home of his aunt, Mrs. O. J. Lunn.

Knute Storle is recovering from a very severe attack of grippe.

Miss Lois C. Yates of Beloit spent from Thursday until Saturday with Mrs. David Thoren.

Miss Minnie Bartling visited relatives in Beloit last week.

Mrs. Mary Kellogg and granddaughter, Mary Howard, are visited at the home of the former's daughter, Mrs. Clarence Gower.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY. Some danger threatens you. When looking for thieves, beware of fire. After a season of anonymity you will make some change or journey that will bring good fortune. Those born today will be generous, brilliant, and attractive, and will gain prestige and money easily. SHOW WALK KETCHES.

THE TOOTHACHE.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

(By Howard L. Rann.)

The toothache is a small, triangular section of the hottest corner in hades, and is used to convert the family circle into a lunatic asylum. One attack of the two-stepping toothache is usually sufficient to transform a sweet-faced, pliant husband into a raging maniac and cause several undress rehearsals of Dante's "Inferno."

The toothache usually starts with a feeling of uneasiness in the left shoulder blade and works its way up gradually until it emerges through the roof with the Conanche war-whoop. When it is about half way up, it will stop and settle in some subterranean passage which cannot be reached with anything short of a cant hook, where it will cut up more capers on a two-inch nerve than a monkey on three thousand feet of grapevine.

There are two kinds of toothache—plain and jumping. The plain, homespun brand of toothache can always be told from the jumping variety by the look of settled woe on the face of the patient. It is generally accompanied by a large, pink swelling which starts just under the right ear and looks like the silken surface of a toy balloon.

The jumping toothache is a ghastly form of 72-point agony which never waits to be introduced. A man may be sitting around home in his slippers, with his teeth perfectly tame and quiet, when all of a sudden the jumping toothache will land in the middle of up a deceased cavity and start a bonfire on the inside of his mouth. People with the jumping toothache always wear an expectant look, as if they heard footsteps on the back porch.

Toothache is caused by the nerves of the teeth dying on the installment plan.

ment plan. As these nerves are buried to quite a depth in the human face, they cannot be murdered without considerable discomfort to everybody but the dentist. The process of killing a nerve which clings feverishly to life was borrowed from the Spanishquisition, and as usually practiced causes the patient to leap blithely into the foliage of a chandelier.

LANDIS FINDS ORIGIN OF THE "RECALL" IDEA.

Word Used in Letter of Governor Cass Written in 1815, Which is Read at Trial.

Origin of the "recall" was discovered by Federal Judge Landis Saturday in testimony given in the hearing of the government's action to restrain the Economy Light & Power Company from erecting a dam at Dresden Heights in the Desplaines River. The point at issue is the navigability of the Desplaines and many accounts of early explorers have figured in the testimony.

After from Governor Lewis Cass of Michigan territory to Washington officials was being read. It was dated June 20, 1815, and advocated the granting to British subjects the same privileges of trading as those given American citizens.

"This will secure to us the right," the letter read, "of recalling them when we find their machinations injurious."

"There we have the origin of the 'recall' idea," interrupted Judge Landis.

SUBJECT OF EMIGRATION TO BE DISCUSSED AT CLUB

Interesting Meeting of Twilight Club Will Be Held Tomorrow Evening.

Members of the Twilight Club are looking forward to an interesting meeting tomorrow evening at which time the subject, "Emigration and Immigration," will be discussed. Chas. H. PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN ENDS INDIGESTION

Time! No Sick, Sour, Gassy Stomach, Heartburn or Dyspepsia. In Five Minutes.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; it's harmless; it's certain unfailing action in regaining sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

WILSON'S SPEECH AT CHICAGO SATURDAY

GAVE HIS VIEWS ON FINANCIAL AFFAIRS, TALKED OF GOOD BAD MONOPOLIES.

GIVES HIS VIEWPOINT

His Address Causes Considerable Unfavorable Comment by Chicago Bankers.

President-elect Wilson delivered an address in Chicago on Saturday night last which gave his views on the financial situation in advance of his inauguration and outlined perhaps the policies of his administration. The speech has caused considerable adverse criticism among bankers and heads of big financial institutions in and about Chicago and was as follows:

Mr. Wilson's address Saturday night follows:

"Mr. President, Ladies, and Gentlemen: I look back with the greatest pleasure upon the frequent occasions when I have dined with this club. Indeed, I dare say I have experienced more pleasure on former occasions than I am experiencing now, because it is more pleasant to tell men what they ought to do when none of the burden falls upon you than to tell them what ought to be done when so much of the burden is likely to center upon yourself.

"I remember the first visit that I paid to this club as a guest of one of your members, but not as a speaker. You were addressed by a certain Mr. Warner Miller, at one time a senator of the state of New York, on the then proposed enterprise of cutting a canal through the isthmus on the Nicaraguan route by private capital.

"Processes of Flattery."

"And I remember that he had spread behind him a map that was most ingeniously contrived to show that all routes of trade ran through Chicago. It was not a map merely of the United States. It was a map of the world, and I reflected even in those immature years how subtle the human mind is and how apt it is to the processes of flattery.

"But I also noticed that you listened with respect but not with credulity, because I never heard that his enterprise was at all set forward by any material assistance from Chicago. There were many gentlemen then, as there are now, in the company who were accustomed to the routes of trade in America and knew where they ran.

"I have been reflecting as I sat here tonight that it would be futile for me to pretend the chief routes of thought ran through Chicago, but I want to induce you, if I may, to travel, or perhaps I should say to forecast some of the routes of thought which must be traveled in this country if we are to settle the problems that are now immediately confronting us.

"Purpose to Ask for Counsel.

"But I am not here to tell you tonight what I am going to do. I am not here to speak of the responsibilities which will fall upon me. I tell you frankly that if I permitted my thought to dwell on the responsibilities which will soon be upon myself, I should be daunted in facing the future.

"I come here to ask for your counsel and assistance and to remind you of the responsibilities which lie upon you as representatives of the people in America. The business future of this country does not depend upon the government of the United States. It depends upon the business men of the United States.

"The hope of America is in the changing attitude of the business men of this country towards the things which they have to handle in the future. If thought and temper had not changed, the things could not have happened which have happened in recent months. For what you have witnessed within the last two months is not merely a political change; it is a change in the attitude and judgment of the American people. One of the reasons why there were not two parties contending for the supremacy at the recent election; one reason why the field of choice was varied and multiplied, was that the old lines are breaking up where they are oldest, and that men are no longer to be catalogued.

"Common Resources for Common Benefit.

"There are some perfectly clear lines that may be laid down. There are four sets of things which have to be done. In the first place we have to husband and administer the common resources of this country for the common benefit.

"Now, not all business men in this country have devoted their thought to that object. They have devoted their thought, very successfully to exploiting the resources of America, but very few business men have devoted their thought to husbanding the resources of America. And very few, indeed, have had the attitude of those who administer a great trust in administering those natural resources.

"Until the business men of America make up their minds both to husband and to administer as if for others as well as for their own profit, the natural resources of this country, some of the greatest ahead of us, will be immensely difficult to solve.

"Why is it that the government of the United States up to this moment has not hit upon a consistent policy of conservation? It has not. You must be aware that a more policy of reservation is not a policy of conservation. It is in one sense a policy of conservation, for it conserves, but no nation can merely keep out of use its resources in order that they may not be squandered and dissipated.

"Government Was Suspicious."

"We must devise some process of general use. And why have we not done so? Why, if I may say very much mistaken, because the government at Washington was tremulously suspicious of everybody who approached it for rights in the water powers and forest reserves and mineral preserves of the western country which the federal government still controls.

"Then there is another thing that is to be done. The raw materials obtainable in this country for every kind of manufacture and industry must be at the disposal of everybody in the United States upon the same terms.

"It does not mean that the government must determine upon what terms they must be available, but merely that they shall be available upon the same terms to whoever applies to use them or to purchase them; that there shall not be discrimination among those who are to have access to these resources.

"Wants Suspicion Dissipated.

"I want to take sternness out of this country. I want to see suspicion dissipated. I want to see a line brought about when the perfectly artificial condition now existing—when the rank and file of the citizens of the United States have a stern attitude toward the business men of the country—shall be absolutely done away with and forgotten.

"There are business problems which it would be easy to deal with if the people were in the temper to deal with them, but they are not, and we must get them in the temper. That job is yours, not mine. You are conducting the business of the country. I am not.

"There is a third thing you must do which has not yet been done. You must put the credit of this country at the disposal of everybody upon equal terms. Now, I am not entering into an indictment against the banking methods of this country. The banking system of this country does not need to be indicted. It is convicted.

"This country is not going to grow rich in the future by the efforts of the men who have already got in. It is going to grow rich by the efforts of the men who have not yet got in. A truism: it is going to get rich by the efforts of future generations after this generation is gone.

"Credit Must Be Upon Equal Terms.

"Generations do not come on by sharp cleavage. One generation does not end today and another begin tomorrow. They are interlaced. The next generation is now struggling for a foothold, and the next generation finds it extremely difficult to get a foothold.

"The credit of this country must be open upon equal terms, and with equal readiness, upon the same terms to everybody. The bankers of this country and the men who have the credit of this country in their control must see to that first of all before they can expect to enjoy the confidence of the country and to have the problems peculiar to them settled without prejudice against them.

"Against Every Feature of Monopoly.

"And then, in addition and on top of all this, we must see to it that the business of the United States is set absolutely free of every feature of monopoly. I notice you do not applaud that. I am somewhat disappointed, because unless you feel that way the thing is not going to happen except by duress, the worst way in which to bring anything about, because there will be monopoly in this country until there are no important business men in this country who do not intend to bring it about.

"Refers to the Tariff.

"I for my part hope the government of the United States never shall take a hand in administering the business of a body of people who above all others in the world are prepared to take care of themselves. They have been very much demoralized by the system of taxation which centers in the tariff.

"I am alarmed at the number of business men that beat the world who are afraid to go out and take the weather in a country the richest in the world, the richest in resources, and I am vain to believe the richest in brains, who say: 'For God's sake, don't take the cover from over our heads; don't expose us to competition with the wits and the resources of other countries which we have all along claimed to be our inferiors in both.' But there was a time—and it is going to come again—when this country was able to take care of itself.

"It will be abundantly able to take care of itself when its energies are really realized and no man is afraid of anybody else; when every man has the same right to conduct an independent business that every other man has; when every man knows that the business community is open for him to enter and be welcome."

FRANCE IS WATCHING COMING ELECTION OF ITS NEXT PRESIDENT

Takes Place Next Friday—Serious Problem Confronts The Deputies.

In Their Choice.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Paris, Jan. 12.—On Friday of next week the National Assembly, composed of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, will meet to elect a new president of the French republic for a term of six years and, unless all indications fail their choice will fall upon M. Raymond Poincare, the present premier. There is only one other candidate of prominence in the field, Senator Ribot, but it is generally conceded that his chances against the brilliant premier are exceedingly slim.

In view of the fact that for the past twenty years, that is, since President Grevy was in office it has been the custom to elect to the presidency men of rather small calibre, not always weak, but inaggressive and willing to become figureheads, mere creatures of the chambers, limiting themselves to presiding at public functions and promulgating the decrees of the legislative body, the selection of M. Poincare would mean a radical departure from precedent, perhaps the beginning of a new era in the evolution of the government of France.

M. Poincare was born at Bar-le-Duc, Department of the Meuse, in 1856. He studied law and literature in Paris and received his degree as soon as he was of age. He was then appointed secretary to the Advocates' Conference, took up the distillery interest for his specialty at the bar and in a few years became noted for his unusual ability and brilliancy. In January, 1886, he obtained his first government position as chief clerk of the Ministry of Agriculture, holding that place until June, 1887. In that year he was returned to the Chamber of Deputies at a by-election in the Department of the Meuse. He was made reporter of the Budget Committee in 1892, and in April, 1893, declined the Ministry of Finance offered to him by M. Dupuy, accepting, however, the position of Minister of Public Instruction.

When the downfall came of the first Dupuy cabinet, in December of that year, M. Poincare was again made reporter of the Budget Committee, and in charge in the Chamber of Deputies. In January, 1894, of the bill reducing the rate of interest on Rentes.

When M. Dupuy formed his second cabinet at the close of May, 1894, M. Poincare was made Minister of Finance. At that time he was strenuously opposed to an income tax, and declared that he would resign rather than contemplate its imposition. Subsequently he consented to daily with its extremist form, the progressive income tax, but finally, on the break-up of the second Dupuy cabinet, in January, 1895, he refused to enter the new Ministry, if it should contain both himself and M. Clavaignac, the special champion of the income tax.

In 1906 M. Poincare returned to the cabinet under Clemenceau, serving as minister of finance, and after his chief's fall in the senate as the representative from the Department of the Meuse. For a short time he was Minister of Public Works and after the fall of the Caillaux ministry President Faillieres in January, 1912, offered him the premiership. M. Poincare did not at once consent, but requested time for deliberation. Not until after he had ascertained that he would be able to form a strong and acceptable cabinet did he accept the premiership. It was a critical moment in the history of the French Republic and the whole world realized that it would require a strong and skillful hand at the ruler of the ship of state to prevent the craft from becoming hopelessly wrecked upon the dangerous rocks in its path. M. Poincare proved himself fully equal to the task and with infinite tact and skill guided the affairs of his country upon safe ground.

M. Poincare is a man of exceptional ability and brilliancy and an unlimited capacity for work. He did not, at first like politics, but embarked upon a public career when duty called him. He is a man of strong character, independent in his views and free from suspicion of being in any way connected with political intrigues or identified with any dishonest schemes. He is a man of undoubted integrity and of high ideals, of keen perception, great analytical and administrative ability and one of the best parliamentary and academic orators of France, with a versatility almost encyclopaedic.

At one time in his life M. Poincare was a journalist, on the staff of the Voltaire and in recognition of his literary and political achievements he was elected a member of the French Academy in 1909, one year after his equally famous cousin, Jules Henri Poincare, the mathematician, had become a member. The latter died a short time ago. M. Poincare is a thorough man of the world. He has a fine house near the Bois de Boulogne, where he entertains liberally and is fond of the theatre and of racing.

TWENTY-FIVE DAY JAIL TERM GIVEN COURTNEY

Robert Courtney Pleads Guilty to Intoxication—John "Baldy" Jackson Also Given Sentence.

Robert Courtney and "Baldy" Jackson, two of the most prominent visitors at the municipal court, paid court this morning for the usual purpose, that of answering a charge of intoxication. Both pleaded guilty. Courtney, who was arrested Saturday morning after he had frightened North Jackson street residents with threats and his manipulations with an axe was sentenced to ten days imprisonment in the county jail and a fine of $15 and costs, or sixteen days additional.

He told the court he had intended to take the pledge a year when dismissed from jail Friday morning and go to work at once, but he loitered around too long and fell back into his old habits.

John Jackson asked the judge to make his fine light so that he could take an all-winter job in the country that had been promised him. Judge Pitfield sentenced him to pay a fine of $5 and costs or go to jail for twenty-five days. "Baldy" was not able to pay the fine himself but looked forward to his employer advancing the money.

REPORT SENTIMENT CHANGES TO FAVOR STATE HIGHWAY AID

Commission in Report Says Opposition Will be Removed by Adoption of Amendments.

Work is Discussed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 12.—The Wisconsin Highway commission, reviewing the first year's operation of the state aid law in its preliminary biennial report, issued today notes that public sentiment has changed vastly in the last twelve months in favor of the law, and that one or two more years of successful operation will remove the last vestige of intelligent opposition. The defects and omissions are made the subject of proposed amendments, which are discussed in detail.

Over Million on Roads.

Of the 71 counties, there were applications for aid from the county or towns of all but six. Work was actually done in 63 counties, and $1,250,000 was available for construction. The deficiency in funds for 1913 work is $442,000, an amount required for the applications of all the towns are to be met in full. A bill to meet this need was introduced in the senate this week by Senator Browne.

For construction intended to be undertaken in 1912 surveys were made for 587 miles of road in 61 counties.

One of the commission's problems was the "breaking in" of county highway commissioners and their foremen. Most of the commissioners lacked experience. In spite of these discouraging conditions, at least 56 percent of the work was entirely successful, the report says; while the other 44 percent is at the worst probably better than was heretofore done in the community. In 1913 there will be not to exceed fifteen new county highway commissioners. It is predicted the 1913 work will be superior in character to that of 1912.

From a builder's standpoint the reason for 1912's success was due to rains and labor and teams were high and scarce. The maximum price for labor was found in Milwaukee county, teams costing from $3.50 to $7 per day. Most of the state aid construction was done under the day labor system, which is found most economical.

Undertake Too Much.

Discussing the county system of highways, the commission says many counties are prone to lay out more construction than can be accomplished. Concentration of construction on main lines of travel is urged in recommendations for new legislation. The commission has for the most part approved nine foot roads. Concrete roads, such as were built in Milwaukee county the past year, are mentioned as being entirely successful. If a bit more tonnage were to go away with the noise and lack of resiliency, this is believed to be the ideal pavement for country roads.

The commission plans to experiment with mixtures of oil and sand, and cement and sand, to produce a surfacing which will give reasonable service at a reasonable cost.

Bridge work in 1912 was planned on a large scale. Plans were made for 147 bridges costing $111,700. In addition engineering advice in bridge work was extended to towns, counties and villages for 129 bridges costing $197,500. The commission altogether prepared plans for 275 bridges, to cost $208,500. For the 1913 season, 204 towns in 51 counties have voted to build 320 bridges, estimated to cost $241,000, exceeding the 1912 work by 113 percent. For 1913 work, over 200 miles of road surveys were made in the fall of 1912.

Efficient Commissioners.

"While the state highway commission is responsible for the success of the work as a whole," says the report, "it cannot make the work a success in any county where the county highway commissioner is inefficient or dishonest. It is absolutely necessary before state road construction can attain its highest success that the people of the state, and more especially the county boards, should realize that road construction is a science worthy of the best efforts of the best man available in the county, that the salary and expenses of a county highway commissioner are small items in the total cost of extensive work, and that his political preferences are unimportant. There are counties in the state which are paying county highway commissioners as little as $200 per year for the supervision of as high as $40,000 worth of construction, where the difference between results produced by a good man and a poor man can easily amount to 20 percent of the cost of the work. Above all things, for the success of this work, it is absolutely necessary that competent county highway commissioners be secured, and that they perform their work in an economical and workmanlike manner."

Of the Wisconsin Highway commissioner John A. Hazelwood is chairman. W. O. Hotchkiss, secretary, and R. Hirst, state highway engineer, and M. W. Dawson, chief clerk.

CLERGYMEN ENDORSE A CHILD LABOR DAY

The National Child Labor committee's call to churches and schools to observe Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, January 25th-27th as Child Labor days, has received the hearty endorsement of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and of the Social Service Commission of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York. Bishop Greer says, "Naturally I am deeply interested, and am glad to endorse and commend your appeal to the clergy of the Diocese."

The following letter signed by Shailer Mathews, president, and Charles S. Macfarland, secretary, of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, has been sent to one hundred state and city federation secretaries of the federal council.

"By authorization of the executive committee of the Federal Council and of the Federal Council's commission on the church and social service, the call of the National Child Labor committee for the observance of the Child Labor Sunday is commended to your earnest consideration with the hope that, in the way they suggest or by such other method as may commend itself to your judgment, the subject of child labor may be fully presented in all its seriousness to the Christian men and women of the nation.

At the recent quadrennial session of the Federal Council, at Chicago, December 9, 1912, the council reaffirmed its declaration of four years previous, that the churches must stand:

"For the abolition of child labor."

"For the fullest possible development for every child, especially by the provision of proper education and recreation."

"These two principles are embodied in the platform of social principles adopted by the council."

In urging them to observe Child Labor day, the Social Service Commission of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York sends to all the clergy in that diocese the following strong resolutions adopted by the House of Bishops at the last general convention, Cincinnati, in 1910.

"Whereas, The employment of children in factories, mines and shops, reduces wages to the child's standard, disintegrates the family, deprives the child of his natural rights to a period of training and time of play, and deprecates the human stock; and,

"Whereas, We recognize the responsibility of the church for our industrial as well as our spiritual stand-

CLERGYMEN ENDORSE A CHILD LABOR DAY

The National Child Labor committee's call to churches and schools to observe Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, January 25th-27th as Child Labor days, has received the hearty endorsement of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America and of the Social Service Commission of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York. Bishop Greer says, "Naturally I am deeply interested, and am glad to endorse and commend your appeal to the clergy of the Diocese."

The following letter signed by Shailer Mathews, president, and Charles S. Macfarland, secretary, of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, has been sent to one hundred state and city federation secretaries of the federal council.

"By authorization of the executive committee of the Federal Council and of the Federal Council's commission on the church and social service, the call of the National Child Labor committee for the observance of the Child Labor Sunday is commended to your earnest consideration with the hope that, in the way they suggest or by such other method as may commend itself to your judgment, the subject of child labor may be fully presented in all its seriousness to the Christian men and women of the nation.

At the recent quadrennial session of the Federal Council, at Chicago, December 9, 1912, the council reaffirmed its declaration of four years previous, that the churches must stand:

"For the abolition of child labor."

"For the fullest possible development for every child, especially by the provision of proper education and recreation."

"These two principles are embodied in the platform of social principles adopted by the council."

In urging them to observe Child Labor day, the Social Service Commission of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York sends to all the clergy in that diocese the following strong resolutions adopted by the House of Bishops at the last general convention, Cincinnati, in 1910.

"Whereas, The employment of children in factories, mines and shops, reduces wages to the child's standard, disintegrates the family, deprives the child of his natural rights to a period of training and time of play, and deprecates the human stock; and,

"Whereas, We recognize the responsibility of the church for our industrial as well as our spiritual standard; "Therefore, We call upon employers and parents to use all influence toward better legislation and better enforcement of the laws for the protection of children, to the end that exploitation of the labor of children shall become impossible in this Christian country."

To aid in the observance of Child Labor day, the National Child Labor Committee is sending free to all clergymen and school principals who apply for it, a pamphlet of facts about child labor. In this pamphlet, among other things, the census figures on child labor for 1900, the latest figures available on the subject, and points out that the total number of workers 10-15 years of age, 1,752,157, does not include the thousands of newsboys and bootblacks who were attending school, nor the other thousands of children who were employed in tenement house manufacturing. Also, the estimate of 284,330 children classified as engaged in manufacturing and mechanical pursuits is misleading since cannery children were in many states reckoned as agricultural workers.

It is expected that in all of the forty-three states having legislative sessions this winter bills bearing on the child labor problem will be introduced.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

THE BEST POLICY.

The crowd about the stage entrance of the Siamity Theater was thicker than usual, for was not Little Speckerrouge the niftiest, fetchingest, irresistible, most adorable young woman who ever reached high C with one foot higher than her head? (Chorus: She was!)

Algie Stage D'or, most gilded of all the gilded youths in his set, whose father was on the board of directors of eight immense canneries and whose mother owned six divorce decrees in her own right, tumbled with gilded love as Miss Speckerrouge emerged from the stage entrance. She had washed all the makeup off, for she was a tidy person, yet she was still beautiful enough to shame the stars if the stars had an ounce of shame in 'em.

Just then a terrible thing almost happened. Algie Stage D'or, his gilded eyes fixed on his idol, stepped backwards into the path of a rapidly approaching Worcestershire roadster. Another second and the girl would have been crushed forever out of him. But what's this? What's what? Why, this? 'Tis the manly figure of Dick Dareall, our hero, who, noting with his calm gray eyes the plight of the gilded youth as he swung along past the stage entrance, with manly strides leaped like a flash in the path of the onrushing Worcestershire, hurled the infuriated Stage D'or to the opposite pavement and then leaped like another flash back to Miss Speckerrouge's side.

"No," spoke up Dick Dareall resolutely, turning his face from the tempting glimmer of the silver. "Years ago I promised my dear mother never to accept more for an action than it was worth."

Charmed with his bravery and honesty, Miss Speckerrouge insisted that he climb into her carriage with her and pay for the wage that night

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Jan. 13, 1873.—A Wise Precaution: In accordance with a suggestion made by the Gazette, the board of supervisors at its last week's meeting instructed the committee on public buildings to either do away with the private wooden stairway which extends from the basement to the upper story of the court house or cause it to be torn out and an iron stairway substituted. The present stairway endangers the building in case of fire and the board takes a wise precaution in ordering its removal.

A Plea for an Inebriate Asylum: Rev. Mr. Lawrence preached a radical sermon on the temperance question at All Souls church yesterday, in which he took the position that the present legislature ought to take measures toward the establishment of a state asylum for inebriates.

Brief Items: Arthur Ellis, formerly a resident of this city and a member of Company G, 8th Wisconsin Regiment, died at Cheyenne on the 27th of December. Mr. Ellis was married a short time since to a Rock county lady.

MOLLY McDONALD

A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH

Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "My Lady of the South," etc., etc.

Illustrations by J. L. Barnes

"Nothing particular—looks familiar, that's all. Who's the soldier behind him—the thin-faced runt?"

"Connors. Some river-rat the recruiting officers picked up in New York; in the guard-house most of the time; driver for Major McDonald when he happens to be sober enough."

"That is where I saw him then, driving the ladies. Knew I had seen that mug before."

Left alone, except for the infantry man at the other side of the entrance, and with nothing to do beyond keeping back the crowd of curious watchers thronging the assembly, Hamlin interested himself in the steps, although keenly conscious of those two men who continued to linger, staring into the brilliantly lighted room. That the two were closely involved with Mrs. Dupont in some money-making scheme, Dupont in some money-making scheme, was already sufficiently clear to the Sergeant's mind. He had overheard enough to grasp this fact, yet the full nature of the scheme was not apparent. Without doubt it involved Gas-kins as a victim; possibly Barrett also, but Hamlin was not inclined to interfere personally for the protection of either of these officers. They could look after themselves, and, if they succumbed to the charms of the lady, and it cost something, why, that was none of his affair. But somehow the suspicion had come to him that he had accidentally stumbled upon a more complicated plot than mere blackmail. Mrs. Dupont's intimacy with Molly, and the use she was making of her distant relationship with the Major to further her ends, made him eager to delve deeper into her real purpose. At least these two, apparently ignorant of their guest's true character, should be warned, or, if that was impossible, protected from imposture. Their open friendliness and social endorsement were the woman's stock in trade at Dodge, and whatever the final denouement might be, McDonald and his daughter would inevitably share in the ensuing disgrace of discovery. Even if they were not also victimized, they would be held largely responsible for the losses of others. Had Hamlin been a commissioned officer he would have known what to do—his plain duty as a friend would have taken form in a frankly spoken warning. But, as it was, the chains of discipline, of social rank, made it seemingly impossible for him to approach either the Major or his daughter openly. He did not actually know enough to venture such an interview, and mere suspicion, even though coupled with his former intimacy with the woman, was not sufficient excuse for his interference. The Major would treat the revelation with indifference, even disbelief, and Miss Molly might even resent his meddling in the affair. Besides he was not altogether convinced that the girl had not been actually present at, and in some manner connected with, the attack on Caskins. The memory of that

Had Hamlin been a commissioned officer he would have known what to do—his plain duty as a friend would have taken form in a frankly spoken warning. But, as it was, the chains of discipline, of social rank, made it seemingly impossible for him to approach either the Major or his daughter openly. He did not actually know enough to venture such an interview, and mere suspicion, even though coupled with his former intimacy with the woman, was not sufficient excuse for his interference. Besides he was not altogether convinced that the girl had not been actually present at, and in some manner connected with, the attack on Caskins. The memory of that face, shrinking behind the corner of the barrack wall, remained clear in his mind. He might be mistaken, but perhaps it would be best to go slow. It was a huge, bare hall, although the walls were concealed by flags, while other draperies were fastened along the rafters. The band was stationed upon a raised platform at the rear, and a hundred couples occupied the floor. The men present were largely officers attired in dress-uniforms, although there was a considerable sprinkling of civilians, a few conspicuous in garments of the latest cut and style. Evidently invitations had been widely spread, and, considering time and place, liberally responded to. Among the women present the Sergeant saw very few he recognized, yet it was comparatively easy to classify the majority—officers' wives; the frontier helpmates of the more prominent merchants of the town; women from the surrounding ranches, who had deserted their homes until the Indian scare ceased; a scattered few from pretentious small cities to the eastward, and here and there, younger faces, representing ranchmen's daughters, with a school-teacher or two. Altogether they made rather a brave show, occasionally exhibiting toilets worthy of admiring glances, never lacking ardent partners, and entering with unalloyed enthusiasm into the evening's pleasure. The big room presented a scene of brilliant color, of ceaselessly moving figures, the air was resonant with laughter and trembling to the dashing strains of the band. Primitive as it was in many respects, to Hamlin, long isolated in small frontier posts, the scene was strangely attractive, his imagination responding to the glow of color, the merry chime of voices, the tripping of feet. The smiling faces dashed past, his ears caught whispered words, his eyes followed the flying figures. For the moment the man forgot himself in this new environment of thoughtless pleasure.

From among that merry throng of strangers his eyes soon distinguished that one in whom he felt special interest—Mrs. Dupont, dancing now with McDonald, the rather corpulent fellow exhibiting almost youthful agility under the inspiration of the music. The lady talked with animation, as they circled among the others on the floor, her red lips close to her partner's ear, but Hamlin, suspicious and watchful, noted that her eyes were busy elsewhere, scanning the faces. They swept over him, apparently unseeing, but as the two circled swiftly by, the hand resting lightly on the Major's shoulder was lifted suddenly in a peculiar, suggestive movement. He stared after them until they were lost in the crowd, feeling confident that the motion of those white-gloved fingers was meant as a signal of warning. To whom was it conveyed? He glanced aside at the jam of figures in the doorway. Both the black-whiskered man and Connors had disappeared. It was a signal then, instantly understood and obeyed.

The Sergeant had scarcely grasped this fact when his attention was diverted by the appearance of Miss McDonald. She was dancing with a civilian, an immaculately dressed individual with ruddy, boyish face. His intense admiration of his partner was plainly evident, and the girl, simply dressed in white, her cheeks flushed, her dark eyes bright with enjoyment, set Hamlin's cool nerves throbbing. He could not resist gazing at her, and as his eyes met, she bowed, the full red lips parting in a smile of recognition. There was no reservation, no restraint in that quick greeting, as she whirled by; he could not fail to comprehend its full significance—she had not forgotten, had no desire to forget. What he imagined he read in her face swept all else from his mind instantly, and, with eager eyes, he followed her slight, girlish figure as they circled the hall. The music ceased, and he still watched as the into a chair beside her. Then the passing into of several men, who desired return checks, claimed his attention. When the last of these had disappeared, he glanced again in her direction. She was alone, and her young partner was waiting toward him across the deserted floor. The lad came to the door, which by now contained few loiterers, and stood there a moment gazing out into the street. "Are you Sergeant Hamlin?" he asked quietly.

"Miss McDonald requested me to hand you this note unobserved. I have no knowledge of its contents."

Hamlin felt the flutter of the paper in his palm, and stood silent, clinging to it, as the other carefully recrossed the room. She was looking toward him, but he made no motion to unfold the missive, until his eyes, searching the chairs, had located Mrs. Dupont. The very secret of her presence made him cautious, made him suspect it had to do with that woman. She was beside the band-stand, still conversing with the Major, apparently oblivious to any other presence, her face turned aside. Assured of this, he opened the paper, and glanced at the few hastily scribbled lines.

"I trust you, and you must believe I do not do this without cause. During the intermission be in the hotel parlor."

CHAPTER XIX.

A Full Confession.

There were two more dances scheduled on the program. The last of these had begun before the infantry sergeant returned, and, apologizing for his long absence, resumed his duties at the door. Across the room, Hamlin's eyes met those of Miss McDonald, where she danced with an unknown officer; then he turned and observed his way to the bustle. The hotel opposite was all bustle and confusion, the bar-room crowded with the thirsty emergency waiters who had rushed about the hall completing final preparations. The Sergeant, intent on his purpose, and aware that the band had ceased playing, dodged past these and entered the parlor. It was already occupied by four men, who were playing cards at a small, round table and smoking vigorously, entirely engrossed in their game. None of them so much as glanced up, and the intruder hesitated, an instant, quickly determining his course of action. There was little choice left. The girl would never make an appointment with him except through necessity, and it was manifestly his duty to protect her from observation. Two of the men sitting there were strangers; the others he knew merely by sight, a tin-horn gambler called Charlie, and a sutler's clerk. His decision was swift and characteristic.

"Gents," he said, stepping up, and

"This Porch is Going to Be Vacated Inside of One Minute."

tapping the table sharply, "you'll have to vamoose from here."

"What the hell—" the gambler looked up into the gray eyes, and stopped.

"That's all right, Charlie," went on Hamlin coolly, one hand at his belt. "Those are my orders, and they go. Hire a room upstairs if you want to keep on with the game. Pick up the stuff, you fellows."

"But see here," the speaker was upon his feet protesting. "The old man told us we could come in here."

"The old man's word don't go for this floor tonight, partner. It's rented by the post officers. Now mosey right along, and don't come back unless you are looking for trouble—you too, Fat."

Right or wrong there was plainly no use continuing the argument, for Hamlin's fingers were upon the butt of his revolver, and his eyes hardened at the delay. The gambler's inclination was to oppose this summary dismissal, but a glance at his crowd convinced him he would have to play the hand alone, so he yielded reluctantly, swept the chips into the side pocket of his coat and departed, leaving behind him a trail of profanity. The Sergeant smiled, but remained motionless until they disappeared.

"The bluff works," he thought serenely, "unless they make a kick at the office; some peevish, Charlie was."

He stepped over to the window, and held back the curtain, to find a figure occupied the bench, with feet upon the rail. Even in that outside dimness could be distinguished a black beard. The very man, and the Sergeant chuckled grimly with a swiftly born hope that the fellow might create a row. Nothing at that moment could have pleased him more. He blew out the parlor light, partially closed the door, and stepped forth on to the porch.

"Say, you," he said gruffly, dropping one hand heavily on the other's shoulder. "Did you hear what I said to those fellows inside? Well, it goes out here the same. Pack up, and clear the deck."

"Reb" dropped his feet to the floor and stood up, his bearded lips glowing profanely, but Hamlin gripped his wrist, and the man stopped, with mouth still open, staring into the Sergeant's face. All bravado seemed to desert him instantly.

"Who—who says so?" and he stepped back farther into the shadow.

"I do, if you need to know," pleasantly enough, "Sergeant Hamlin, Seventh Cavalry."

"Oh!" the exclamation came from between clenched teeth. "Hell, man, you startled me."

"So I see; nervous disposition, I reckon. Well, are you going quietly, or shall I hold you over the rail?"

"I had an appointment here."

"Can't help that, partner. This porch is going to be vacant inside of one minute, or there is a declaration of war. Your easiest way out is through that window, but you can go by rail if you prefer."

The black beard wasted half his allowed time in an effort to bluster; then, to Hamlin's utter disgust, slunk through the open window and across the darkened parlor.

"The pusillanimous cuss," the latter muttered, "he's worse than a cur dog. Blamed if he wasn't actually afraid of me. A gun-fighter—pugh!" He lifted his voice, as "Reb" paused in the light of the hall beyond and glanced back, a fist doubled and uplifted. "Oh, go on! Sure, you'll get me? You are the brave boy, now," and Hamlin strode toward the door threateningly. "Lope along, son, and don't turn around again until you face the bar."

He drew the door partially to again, and sat down facing the opening, where a stray beam of light fell across the floor. Thus far the adventure had scarcely proven interesting. The last encounter had been a distinct disappointment. The dispersal of the card-players was, as anticipated, easily managed, but the reputation of "Reb" as killer and bad man had given him hope of resistance. But instead he had proven a perfect lamb. Hamlin crossed his legs and waited, his mind divided in wonder between what Miss McDonald might want, and the cowardice of the fellow just driven out. The man was actually afraid—afraid to start a row. Yet he had got to his feet with that intention; it was only after he had looked into Hamlin's face and asked his name, that he began to hedge and draw back. Could he have recognized him? Could Mrs. Dupont have warned him of danger in his direction? That would seem impossible, for the woman had not been with him for even a minute since their conversation. She had given him a swift signal at the door of the dance hall, but that could scarcely account for his present desire to avoid trouble. An engagement? Probably with Mrs. Dupont. But what was the use of speculating? Perhaps when the girl came she would have some light to throw on these matters. Surely her sudden determination to see him privately must have connection with this affair.

The Theatre

"THE LITTLEST REBEL."

Mr. Marshall Farnum will be presented in Edward Peple's latest play "The Littlest Rebel," at the Myers theatre, Saturday, Jan. 18, matinee and evening, special return engagement under the direction of A. H. Woods. "The Littlest Rebel" is a stirring, pathetic and humorous war-play the action of which takes place near Richmond towards the close of the civil war. It is not a play exploiting the love of the soldier of the north and the maid of the south. The love-interest centers in the paternal love of two men, one actuated naturally and the other by sympathy. There is no accounting for sexes at all; the author has shown that it is not this love that alone can inspire to deeds of heroism and elasticity of duty, but that an equally if not stronger motive exists when the chord of human pity is touched: The grim background of war is muted; the stripped away, and the story of the little girl who suffered through many trying ordeals and finally saved his life through her peculiar history, would hold its human interest; but all the elements of the play adds to its appeal and serves to please all tastes from the romantic sentimentalist to the lover of the thrilling and spectacular. Mr. Farnum has a play which offers ample opportunity to display his pleasing and interesting personality and histrionic abilities.

The story is simple. It is about a southern scout who risked his life to see his little hungry and motherless girl, and in doing so was captured by Lieut. Col. Morrison of the Northern

OLIVE Tablets

OIL the Bowels

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel.

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after-effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice, treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of jocular buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10 and 25 cents per box.

Every little Olive Tablet makes a movement all its own.

KANSAS CITY POULTRY SHOW RECORD SIZE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 13.—The Kansas City International Poultry Show, which opened in Convention Hall today, is probably the biggest poultry show of the year, nearly 5,000 fowl being on exhibition. In addition to the blue blood of poultrydom the display embraces many breeds of dogs, pigeons, rabbits, cats and other varieties of pet stock. The exhibition will continue through the week.

For Delicate Children

A Mother's Letter To Mothers.

Mrs. E. W. Cooper of Bloomfield, N. J. says: "My child, seven years old had a bad cold and was weak and quite run down in health. She had been in this condition for about six weeks when I began giving her Vinol. It was a wonderful help to the child, breaking up her cold quickly and building up her strength. I have also found Vinol a most excellent tonic for keeping up the children's strength during a siege of whooping cough."

Vinol is a wonderful combination of two world-famed tonics—the medicinal body building elements of cod liver oil and iron for the blood, therefore it is a perfectly safe medicine for children, because it is not a patent medicine, everything in it is printed on every package, so mothers may know what they are giving their little ones.

Therefore we ask every mother of a weak, sickly or ailing child in this vicinity to try Vinol on our guarantee. Smith Drug Co., Janesville, Wis.

Eggs, Eggs, Eggs.

Eggs for everybody. During the months of January and February, we have plenty of fresh eggs for table use. After March 1st we have plenty of eggs, from our many varieties, for hatching. Our prices are the lowest, for quality eggs, from the best strains in this country. See our exhibit at the Poultry Show and judge for yourself, the quality of our birds. We will also have on exhibition the Norwich Automatic Exerciser and Feeder, the greatest labor and food saver; among the desirable articles for the care of poultry. It pays for itself many times over each year, in the saving of food, and will last a lifetime. We have the exclusive agency for the northwest, and have been unable to furnish them, as fast as orders have come in. Try one, and if not right in every way, return it, and get your money back. We have also taken the agency for the Close-to-Nature grain sprouter, and have exclusive agency for this territory. The grain sprouter furnishes green food all winter, fresh every day, at an expense of about 10c per bushel, with oats at the present price. In other words one bushel of oats makes three bushels of the very best green food for poultry. It will double your egg supply in thirty days. We use both these articles on our poultry farm, and find them very valuable articles, paying large profits over the old methods. Always remember, we never offer for sale, any article, that is not tested out thoroughly on our own plant, and has proven to us a money maker and the best articles of the kind made. Before we took the agency for the Norwich Feeder and Close-to-Nature grain sprouter, we thoroughly investigated every kind made, then gave them a practical test, now offer our experience to you free. The motto of
